Chicago Mops Up Damage

Hammond City Emergency Exists

Chicago, Oct. 11 (AP)—Chicago and communities in northern Illinois and northern Indiana continued mopping up operations today from a weekend of torrential rains.

A flood threat appeared in some parts of the rain-drenched region. A state of emergency was declared in the Hammond, Ind., area, about 20 miles southeast of Chicago.

Gov. William G. Stratton of Illinois ordered a survey of the flood situation in northern Illinois for possible emergency action. National Guardsmen were alerted for possible duty.

HUNDREDS OF families were driven from their homes in Chicago, the southwestern suburban area and in the Hammond-Gary area of Indiana. Thousands of homes were flooded as Chicago was pelted with the heaviest rainfall in nearly 70 years. Water covered highways in many parts of the storm belt.

Train service on four major railroads was halted as waters from the Chicago river overflowed tracks at the big Union Station.

A tieup of many Chicago industrial plants was in prospect as a quarter of the main source of electric generating capacity was knocked out.

THE FLOW OF the Chicago river, which runs through the center of the city, was reversed for five hours last night to halt the flooding of buildings on the edge of the downtown district.

Damages from the storm were estimated unofficially as high as 10 million dollars. But some city officials said an accurate estimate could not be made immediately.

Gov. William G. Stratton ordered heads of the Illinois National Guard, state police and state highway to survey the flood situation for possible emergency action.

The coast guard, Red Cross, police and city street employes worked around the clock to alleviate the flood situation.

MANY STREAMS in the northern part of the state were nearing flood stage.

The rains pelted the Chicago land area for nearly 30 straight hours, starting about 5 p. m. Saturday and ending around 10 p. m. Sunday. The official rainfall measured more than six inches. The 5.57 inches in 24 hours was the heaviest for a 24-hour period in Chicago since 1885. Yesterday's weather was

Morhouse Asks Harriman Act

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—Republican State Chairman L. Judson Morhouse says that if Averell Harriman is "sincerely opposed to higher taxes . . . he should show his good faith by repudiating the Liberal party nomination" for governor.

Morhouse said in a statement here yesterday that Harriman, Democratic-Liberal Party candidate, is "still the high tax candidate in this election."

Morhouse's statement commented on Harriman's declaration of Saturday that he does not agree with a Liberal Party plank calling for tax increases.

1,743 Lose Jobs Over Subversion

Figures for Year Ending June 30

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP)—The Eisenhower administration reported today it now lists 6,926 persons — 1,743 of them with "subversive data" in their files — as taken off the government payroll as a result of its security program.

Of the total, 2,611 were listed as fired outright and 4,315 as having resigned before final determination of their cases.

The program is aimed to reach drunks, loose-talkers and people with records as law-violators as well as Communists, fellow-travelers and persons of questionable loyalty.

TABBED AS IN the latter group are the 1,743 the administration said had subversive data in their files. This figure compares with 383 when the administration last released statistics in March.

The 6,926 total of those who were fired and those who resigned while under investigation compares with the March total of 2,486.

The number separated because of information indicating, "in varying degrees, subversive activities, subversive associations or membership in subversive organizations" showed an increase of 1,360 since a previous breakdown last March.

ALL TOLD, the Civil Service Commission said 2,611 federal workers have been fired under the loyalty program and 4,315 resigned without a final determination of their cases. This total of 6,926 compares with 2,427 similar security separations announced last spring.

Mendes-France Sees Majority

Vote Due Tuesday in Assembly

Defeat May Mean Government End

Paris, Oct. 11 (AP)—Premier Pierre Mendes-France pushed ahead today with his drive for quick National Assembly endorsement of the London agreement to rearm Germany. He claimed an "important majority" would back him tomorrow in the parliamentary vote, which would unseat his government if he lost.

The National Council of the powerful Socialist Party, which holds 105 seats in the 627-member Assembly, scheduled a meeting tonight to set the faction's policy on the nine-power proposals.

THE NATIONAL committee of another major assembly group, the Popular Republican Movement (MRP), disapproved the London accords yesterday but left to their deputies' committee a final decision on how the 88 Assembly members from the party should vote.

The MRP, whose leaders include former Foreign Ministers Robert Schuman and Georges Bidault, had led the unsuccessful fight for Assembly approval of the European Defense Community (EDC). The party contends that the London proposals do not contain enough of the international control of German rearmament which EDC would have provided.

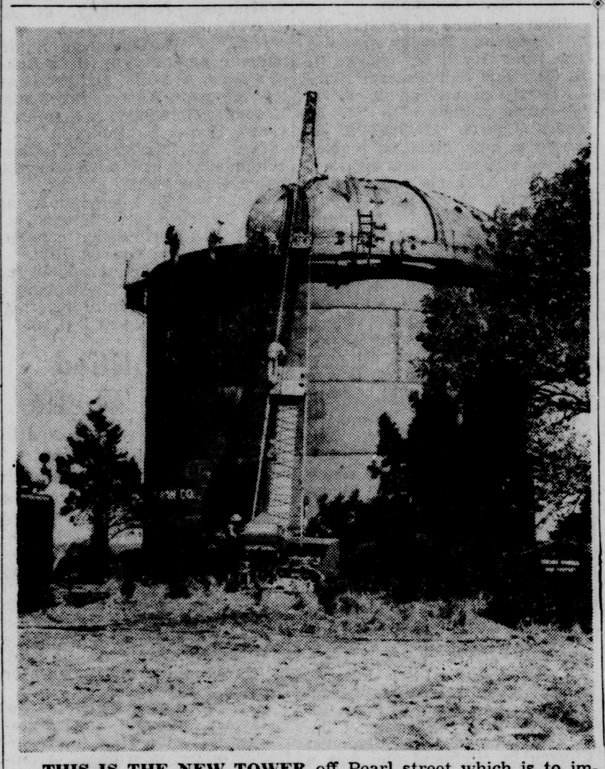

THE SOCIALIST council also had backed EDC and expelled three top leaders from the party who voted against that treaty. A 50-50 split in the party's deputies on the EDC vote was one of the factors in its rejection in August.

Mendes-France apparently anticipates a sizable backing from the Socialists and MRP, no matter what their party commands decide. The premier is certain of solid opposition from the assembly's 100 Communists and fellow travelers.

MENDES-FRANCE voiced his confident expectations yesterday in a speech at Pont Saint-Pierre, in his native Normandy. He told his audience "a large area of agreement has appeared" in the assembly debate on the London agreements.

"It is particularly refreshing to note not only that the debate took place in an at-

Registration Is 802 Below 1950

Registration here followed a statewide trend and was 802 below the 1950 total when the state last elected a governor.

After three days of alarmingly low registration a total of 5,479 Saturday brought the city's four-day total to 13,189. This was the lowest in the past five years, however.

This year's registration was also 57 below the 1953 total when 13,246 registered. The 1952 total was 15,948, the 1951 was 14,202, the 1950 was 13,991 and the 1949 total was 15,057.

Before Saturday's registration the three-day total was 7,730 while in 1950 the three days totalled 8,542, a drop of 812. All four days brought out heavy registration in 1952 and the three-day total then was 11,461, a difference of 3,731.

Thousands See New IBM Lab

Thousands of people availed themselves of the opportunity to inspect the new International Business Machines Corp. research laboratory at Poughkeepsie Saturday afternoon after the dedication ceremonies and cornerstone laying by Thomas J Watson, chairman of the board.

The laboratory, which has been proclaimed one of the most modern research laboratories in the world, is housed in two three-story U-shaped structures on Boardman Road in the town of Poughkeepsie. The two laboratory buildings containing 179,000 square feet of floor space are connected by a wing which houses an auditorium, lounge, library, cafeteria, kitchen, shop and receiving department.

LABORATORIES in the south wing are used for basic research projects and those in the north wing for component development and testing.

The afternoon dedication service which was held outdoors, was preceded in the morning by an inspection of the building by about 500 invited guests who were entertained at noon at luncheon following conducted tours of the building. Those in attendance at the luncheon were guests of Thomas J. Watson, Sr., chairman of the board. Attending the luncheon were officials of the corporation and their guests from the various plants of the company, the New York offices, and officials who will be at the new Kingston plant assisting Gavin A. Cullen, general manager.

Mayor, Others Plan Opening

Mayor Frederick H. Stang and his committee planning the local observance of the opening of the New York State Thruway south of the city Oct. 26, was scheduled to meet this afternoon with state men to plan details of the celebration.

The expressway when opened in two weeks from Westmoreland, near Utica, to Newburgh, a distance of 183 miles, will be the longest operating toll highway in the United States.

Governor Thomas E. Dewey, will formally open the section which will bring the total distance of the road to 366 miles open to traffic between New York and Buffalo. It will then be possible to drive from Newburgh to Buffalo.

MAYOR STANG WILL meet with Thomas G. Carroll, general chairman of the opening celebration and Inspector Robert Annett, of the state police, the committee and Police Chief Raymond VanBuren and Sheriff Cluett Schantz. They will meet on the site of the Route 28 interchange.

Governor Dewey will lead a motorcade along the Westmoreland-Newburgh section in a day-long celebration on the opening date and various communities along the way, including Kingston, will participate.

Earlier announcements indicated that it was originally planned to open the route from the Utica area to Harriman, but apparently progress south of Newburgh has not been equal to that northward.

B. D. TALLAMY, chairman of the thruway authority, said recently that the state plans to open the route through to Suffern by the end of the year. The section connecting Suffern with New York city is to be completed next year.

The completed route from Buffalo to New York will be 427 miles long, and ultimately the $962,000,000 system will extend

Hurley Will Vote On $196,000 New School Addition

Qualified voters of Union Free School District, No. 4, Hurley, will vote Thursday night, Oct. 14, on a proposition to construct a $196,000 addition to its school in the hamlet of Hurley.

A special meeting of the district voters will be held at 7 p. m. Thursday, following which the polls will be open from 7:30 to 10:30 p. m.

Balloting will be on two propositions. The first would authorize the board of education to construct and equip an addition to the existing school building and to issue bonds for $196,000 "or so much thereof as may be necessary."

THE SECOND proposition would authorize the board to acquire as an additional school site a tract of land adjoining the present school property, at a cost of approximately $2,000.

To be eligible to vote, a person must have been a resident of the school district for at least 30 days prior to the date of vote and be a citizen of the U. S. over 21 years of age. Also, he must possess one of the following qualifications: own property in the district, rent taxable property in the district, have a child of school age, or be guardian of a school age child.

THE PLAN proposed by the board of education is to amortize approximately $198,000 over a 20-year period. According to estimates, the principal and in-

Jackson's Funeral to Be Held at Cathedral

Brief memorial services were planned by the United States Supreme Court today in tribute to Justice Robert H. Jackson, who died of a heart attack Saturday at the age of 62.

Justice Jackson, whose widow is the former Miss Irene Gerhardt, of this city, had been a part of the official life of the nation's capital for 21 years. He had been a Supreme Court justice for 13. The justice was stricken Saturday noon by a coronary occlusion. He had suffered a light heart attack last March, but appeared to have recovered.

JUSTICE JACKSON lived at McLean, Virginia. In addition to Mrs. Jackson, he leaves a son, William E., of New York; and a daughter, Mrs. Mary G. Bowdoin Craighill Jr., of McLean. Mrs. Jackson has a brother, Fred Gerhardt, of 161 E. Chester street, Kingston, and a sister, Elizabeth.

Brought to Washington by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jackson was the solicitor general who argued before the Supreme Court the validity of much of the sweeping legislation of the early New Deal days.

He won international recognition years later when former President Truman named him as the chief U. S. prosecutor of major Nazis as war criminals at Nuernberg after World War 2. Jackson took a leave from the nation's highest tribunal for that assignment, for which Truman awarded him the medal of merit.

THE BODY WILL LIE in state at a funeral home until noon tomorrow. Services will be held in Washington (Episcopal) Cathedral tomorrow (3 p. m.), conducted by the Rev. Alfred St. John Matthews of St. John's Episcopal Church of McLean and the Venerable Albert H. Lucas, Episcopal archdeacon of Maryland.

The body will be taken to

ROBERT H. JACKSON

Jamestown, N. Y., Jackson's home, with burial on Wednesday at Frewsburg, N. Y. Jackson's colleagues on the Supreme Court will serve as honorary pallbearers at the Washington services.

There was no solid speculation as to the man President Eisenhower would name to succeed Jackson in what will be his second appointment to the high court. Eisenhower named Warren a year ago to succeed the late Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson.

Names first mentioned included Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, but associates of the President at the summer White House in Denver discounted the likelihood of either man being named.

Indications were that no one would be chosen until after the President returns to Washington next weekend.

Eisenhower lauded Jackson's "exceptional legal talents and devotion to the public good," and there were similar tributes from many others in public life.

Farm Laborer Dies of Injuries

Patrick Joseph Woods, about 50, an area farm laborer, was fatally injured when he was struck by an automobile on Route 9W at Marlborough about 10 p. m. Saturday.

Woods, who was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Luke's Hospital in Newburgh, died of a fractured skull, fracture of the right arm, head lacerations and internal injuries, according to Coroner Francis J. McCardle, who issued a verdict of accidental death.

State police reported the pedestrian was struck by an automobile driven by Anthony Zambito, 64, of Marlborough, who was driving south on Route 9W.

ZAMBITO, WHO HAS operated a taxi business in Marlborough for many years, was not held. According to Coroner McCardle, investigation disclosed that Woods had been drinking and was walking on the highway, "weaving" from side to side, and that Zambito was unable to avoid striking him. There was traffic in both directions at the time, preventing the automobile driver from swerving, according to the report.

Woods had been employed as a farm worker in the Marlborough-Highland area for about 15 years, troopers said.

State police and the coroner are attempting to find out whether Woods had any relatives living, but have been without success.

Nearly Took Lives, Seamen Tell, Before Their Rescue

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 11 (AP) — Eleven seamen, survivors of the capsized freighter Mormackite, were safely in port today with harrowing tales of two days floating helplessly in stormy, shark-invested waters.

Lost in the disaster were 57 of their shipmates, including the captain, Patrick J. McMahon of Valley Stream, N. Y.

A Coast Guard board of inquiry sets out this morning to find a full explanation for the sinking last Thursday, apparently caused by shifting of the ship's iron ore cargo. The 6,000-ton vessel capsized so quickly there was no chance to send a distress message and crewmen were unable to get lifeboats into the water. The ship carried no life rafts.

The Mormackite sank under the brutal pounding of wind-whipped Atlantic seas 150 miles east-southeast of Cape Henry.

The 11 survivors were brought to Norfolk yesterday by three Navy destroyer escorts. With them came the bodies of 12 who died. The remaining 25 bodies were not found and presumably went down with the ship or disappeared more terrifyingly among the, sharks that survivors reported seeing by the hundreds.

Some of the sharks were "12, 14 and 16 feet long," reported Patadio Del Valle of New York city. One of three who clung atop a makeshift raft, Del Valle said rescue came just in time to keep his group from taking their own lives. After his arrival in port yesterday, he told newsmen:

'On the last day we started to think how we could take our lives away the easiest. When you're drinking salt water and taking it into your lungs, it is terrible. Yesterday (Saturday) morning the three of us decided to do it. Then we saw a navy carrier and then there were planes. Another hour and we would have been dead."

Seaman Charles L. Williams of Mobile, Ala., gave this account of the sinking:

'I was asleep and about 9:15 in the morning we took a big roll and never straightened out . . . the

Teachers Told Education Key to Combat Communism

"If democracy is to cope successfully with the Communist challenge and onslaught, education must play a more vital role," Dr. Abraham Lefkowitz, legislative representative for the Empire State Federation of Teachers Unions, said at a dinner given in his honor at the Governor Clinton Hotel Saturday night.

Delegates from more than 20 were present at the closing session of the three-day annual convention of the Empire State Federation of Teachers (AFL), during which a citation was presented to Dr. Lefkowitz in recognition of his services to teachers for over half a century.

In his talk, Dr. Lefkowitz contended that highly qualified teachers must be secured and their talents "utilized to develop citizens with a global outlook zealously devoted to our way of life, and motivated by a desire to promote the well-being of their fellowmen.

"Such citizens would be more competent to play an intelligent and constructive role in helping America to solve the world problems leadership has thrust upon her," he said.

"Could the money spent on World War 2 have been spent instead for constructive social purposes, we could have built modern schools to house 44 million children; hospitals and clinics for all who need medical

Vietminh Units Parade Through Crowded Hanoi

Hanoi, Indochina, Oct. 11 (AP)—Elements of the Communist-led Vietminh 305th and 352nd divisions, loaded down with the booty they won at Dien Bien Phu, paraded through the crowded business section of Hanoi yesterday.

Making their first gala appearance in the city they took over from the French Saturday night, the Communist-Nationalist army was given a spirited welcome from the holidaying population.

The troops entered into the festive mood. Many of them carried bouquets of flowers, sang, strummed on guitars, and played accordions as they made their way down the Boulevard Francis Garnier. In the center of the city.

There was still no indication when Vietminh Government Chief Ho Chi Minh and the army commander, Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, would enter the city. There have been suggestions they would arrive Oct. 16, the day before Indian Prime Minister Nehru is scheduled to stop in Hanoi en route to Peiping.

The military parade was a triumphal entry involving about a regiment of men and 100 or so pigtailed Vietminh WACS.

Prominent among the array of material they trundled through the streets were American 105mm cannon, bazookas and light arms captured from the

Earlier announcements indicated that it was originally planned to open the route from the Utica area to Harriman, but apparently progress south of Newburgh has not been equal to that northward.

B. D. TALLAMY, chairman of the thruway authority, said recently that the state plans to open the route through to Suffern by the end of the year. The section connecting Suffern with New York city is to be completed next year.

The completed route from Buffalo to New York will be 427 miles long, and ultimately the $962,000,000 system will extend

Hurley Will Vote On $196,000 New School Addition

Qualified voters of Union Free School District, No. 4, Hurley, will vote Thursday night, Oct. 14, on a proposition to construct a $196,000 addition to its school in the hamlet of Hurley.

A special meeting of the district voters will be held at 7 p. m. Thursday, following which the polls will be open from 7:30 to 10:30 p. m.

Balloting will be on two propositions. The first would authorize the board of education to construct and equip an addition to the existing school building and to issue bonds for $196,000 "or so much thereof as may be necessary."

THE SECOND proposition would authorize the board to acquire as an additional school site a tract of land adjoining the present school property, at a cost of approximately $2,000.

To be eligible to vote, a person must have been a resident of the school district for at least 30 days prior to the date of vote and be a citizen of the U. S. over 21 years of age. Also, he must possess one of the following qualifications: own property in the district, rent taxable property in the district, have a child of school age, or be guardian of a school age child.

THE PLAN proposed by the board of education is to amortize approximately $198,000 over a 20-year period. According to estimates, the principal and in-

Jackson's Funeral to Be Held at Cathedral

Brief memorial services were planned by the United States Supreme Court today in tribute to Justice Robert H. Jackson, who died of a heart attack Saturday at the age of 62.

Justice Jackson, whose widow is the former Miss Irene Gerhardt, of this city, had been a part of the official life of the nation's capital for 21 years. He had been a Supreme Court justice for 13. The justice was stricken Saturday noon by a coronary occlusion. He had suffered a light heart attack last March, but appeared to have recovered.

JUSTICE JACKSON lived at McLean, Virginia. In addition to Mrs. Jackson, he leaves a son, William E., of New York; and a daughter, Mrs. Mary G. Bowdoin Craighill Jr., of McLean. Mrs. Jackson has a brother, Fred Gerhardt, of 161 E. Chester street, Kingston, and a sister, Elizabeth.

Brought to Washington by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jackson was the solicitor general who argued before the Supreme Court the validity of much of the sweeping legislation of the early New Deal days.

He won international recognition years later when former President Truman named him as the chief U. S. prosecutor of major Nazis as war criminals at Nuernberg after World War 2. Jackson took a leave from the nation's highest tribunal for that assignment, for which Truman awarded him the medal of merit.

THE BODY WILL LIE in state at a funeral home until noon tomorrow. Services will be held in Washington (Episcopal) Cathedral tomorrow (3 p. m.), conducted by the Rev. Alfred St. John Matthews of St. John's Episcopal Church of McLean and the Venerable Albert H. Lucas, Episcopal archdeacon of Maryland.

The body will be taken to

ROBERT H. JACKSON

Jamestown, N. Y., Jackson's home, with burial on Wednesday at Frewsburg, N. Y. Jackson's colleagues on the Supreme Court will serve as honorary pallbearers at the Washington services.

There was no solid speculation as to the man President Eisenhower would name to succeed Jackson in what will be his second appointment to the high court. Eisenhower named Warren a year ago to succeed the late Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson.

Names first mentioned included Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, but associates of the President at the summer White House in Denver discounted the likelihood of either man being named.

Indications were that no one would be chosen until after the President returns to Washington next weekend.

Eisenhower lauded Jackson's "exceptional legal talents and devotion to the public good," and there were similar tributes from many others in public life.

Nearly Took Lives, Seamen Tell, Before Their Rescue

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 11 (AP) — Eleven seamen, survivors of the capsized freighter Mormackite, were safely in port today with harrowing tales of two days floating helplessly in stormy, shark-invested waters.

Lost in the disaster were 57 of their shipmates, including the captain, Patrick J. McMahon of Valley Stream, N. Y.

A Coast Guard board of inquiry sets out this morning to find a full explanation for the sinking last Thursday, apparently caused by shifting of the ship's iron ore cargo. The 6,000-ton vessel capsized so quickly there was no chance to send a distress message and crewmen were unable to get lifeboats into the water. The ship carried no life rafts.

The Mormackite sank under the brutal pounding of windwhipped Atlantic seas 150 miles east-southeast of Cape Henry.

The 11 survivors were brought to Norfolk yesterday by three Navy destroyer escorts. With them came the bodies of 12 who died. The remaining 25 bodies were not found and presumably went down with the ship or disappeared more terrifyingly among the, sharks that survivors reported seeing by the hundreds.

Some of the sharks were "12, 14 and 16 feet long," reported Patadio Del Valle of New York city. One of three who clung atop a makeshift raft, Del Valle said rescue came just in time to keep his group from taking their own lives. After his arrival in port yesterday, he told newsmen:

'On the last day we started to think how we could take our lives away the easiest. When you're drinking salt water and taking it into your lungs, it is terrible. Yesterday (Saturday) morning the three of us decided to do it. Then we saw a navy carrier and then there were planes. Another hour and we would have been dead."

Seaman Charles L. Williams of Mobile, Ala., gave this account of the sinking:

'I was asleep and about 9:15 in the morning we took a big roll and never straightened out . . . the

Teachers Told Education Key to Combat Communism

"If democracy is to cope successfully with the Communist challenge and onslaught, education must play a more vital role," Dr. Abraham Lefkowitz, legislative representative for the Empire State Federation of Teachers Unions, said at a dinner given in his honor at the Governor Clinton Hotel Saturday night.

Delegates from more than 20 were present at the closing session of the three-day annual convention of the Empire State Federation of Teachers (AFL), during which a citation was presented to Dr. Lefkowitz in recognition of his services to teachers for over half a century.

In his talk, Dr. Lefkowitz contended that highly qualified teachers must be secured and their talents "utilized to develop citizens with a global outlook zealously devoted to our way of life, and motivated by a desire to promote the well-being of their fellowmen.

"Such citizens would be more competent to play an intelligent and constructive role in helping America to solve the world problems leadership has thrust upon her," he said.

"Could the money spent on World War 2 have been spent instead for constructive social purposes, we could have built modern schools to house 44 million children; hospitals and clinics for all who need medical

Vietminh Units Parade Through Crowded Hanoi

Hanoi, Indochina, Oct. 11 (AP)—Elements of the Communist-led Vietminh 305th and 352nd divisions, loaded down with the booty they won at Dien Bien Phu, paraded through the crowded business section of Hanoi yesterday.

Making their first gala appearance in the city they took over from the French Saturday night, the Communist-Nationalist army was given a spirited welcome from the holidaying population.

The troops entered into the festive mood. Many of them carried bouquets of flowers, sang, strummed on guitars, and played accordions as they made their way down the Boulevard Francis Garnier. In the center of the city.

There was still no indication when Vietminh Government Chief Ho Chi Minh and the army commander, Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, would enter the city. There have been suggestions they would arrive Oct. 16, the day before Indian Prime Minister Nehru is scheduled to stop in Hanoi en route to Peiping.

The military parade was a triumphal entry involving about a regiment of men and 100 or so pigtailed Vietminh WACS.

Prominent among the array of material they trundled through the streets were American 105mm cannon, bazookas and light arms captured from the

Jury Will Hear Charges Petersen Gave Secret Data

Alexandria, Va., Oct. 11 (AP)—A specially called grand jury will hear next Monday charges that Joseph S. Petersen Jr., improperly obtained secret documents "with intent or reason to believe" they would help a foreign nation.

Petersen, for 13 years an employe of the supersecret National Security Agency and its predecessors until he was discharged Oct. 1, was arrested on the charge Saturday by FBI agents. He had been under surveillance for some time before that.

PETERSEN'S ATTORNEY, David B. Kinney, said meantime he will ask the court to reduce the $25,000 bond fixed Saturday when Petersen was arraigned before a U. S. commissioner.

Federal Judge Albert V. Bryan today ordered a grand jury which sat last June to reconvene next Monday at 10 a. m. to hear the charges. The next regular grand jury would not have met until Dec. 6.

Petersen, who spent the weekend in jail for lack of bond, did not appear at today's proceedings but his wife and his brother, William Petersen of New Orleans, attended.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—The stock market dropped today after a somewhat higher start.

Gains and losses were rather narrow and spread out over a range of around a point in the early afternoon.

At the start, trading was vigorous with many large blocks on the tape. The pace slowed thereafter but it still was a bit better than 2,000,000 for the entire day. Friday's volume was 2,120,000 with the market a shade lower on balance.

Steels and oils started out higher, but both divisions soon ran into moderate selling that cut gains down and produced some losers.

Chrysler, which is introducing its new models today at a press preview, was higher, but General Motors was down.

Aircrafts were generally lower as were chemicals. Railroads and utilities remained steady. Airlines were unchanged to higher.

Advancing stock included Granite City Steel, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Phelps Dodge, U. S. Pipe & Foundry, Bayuk Cigars, Mission Corp., and Royal Dutch Petroleum.

Nearly Took Lives

iron ore had shifted to the portside...in 30 minutes the water was running in the stacks and she sank. We had no life rafts aboard and were unable to get boats into the water.

"We tied boards together after we were in the water and made a raft. Capt. McMahon and the helmsman were trapped on the bridge and went down with the ship. Most of the men drowned in the heavy seas."

Another seaman Pedro De Jesus of the Bronx, N. Y., said the captain did everything he could to save the ship. And crewman John A. Davis, Barnardsville, N. C., reported, "it all happened faster than you could believe...I know the captain didn't get off."

Remy Rosario of New York city estimated he saw 300 to 400 sharks, and added:

"I saw a man just a few yards away when the sharks took off about half of his leg. He bled to death in about 7, 8 or 9 minutes, I would say. The blood in the water attracted more sharks and I kept kicking my feet to keep them away."

Rosario said his legs were sore from all the kicking, "but it saved my life."

Heading the Coast Guard's investigation of the maritime disaster was Capt. R. M. Hoyle, chief of staff for the 5th Coast Guard District with headquarters here. Others on the board were two other district officers, Cmdr. W. J. Conley and Lt. Cmdr. M. E. Meekins.

Physicians at the U. S. Public Health Service Hospital here said none of the 11 survivors was in serious condition despite their ordeal.

The Coast Guard, whose cutters and planes had joined navy vessels and merchantmen in a relentless three-day hunt for survivors of the sinking, called off the search for good at 5 p. m. (EST) yesterday. Hope thus vanished for the remaining crewmen.

The Normackite was en route from Victoria, Brazil, to Baltimore when she capsized.

has removed "Communists, fellow travelers and security risks" from government payrolls, "not by the hundreds, but by the thousands."

Democratic National Chairman Stephen Mitchell has challenged the accuracy of Nixon's statement and at one point accused him of uttering "falsehoods."

MITCHELL'S POINT was a contention that Nixon was lumping actual subversives with such persons as loose talkers or drunks.

Today's report by the Civil Service Commission listed 618 cases in which there were allegations of sex perversion compared with 194 in March; 2,272 charges involving felonies and misdemeanors, compared with 605; and 3,657 lumped in a broad miscellaneous category, compared with 1,045 in that class last March.

The agency said the total in its breakdown of categories of derogatory information in the files exceeded the number listed as fired or resigned "because an employe might have in his file information falling under more than one category."

The largest number—284—of separations involving subversion was listed for the army, followed by 200 from the air force, 231 from the veterans administration and 227 from the navy.

In making public the similar compilation last March Philip Young, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, said "there is no figure in the table that includes the number of disloyal persons."

Injured in Fall

Rose Marie Butler, 8, of 580 Abeel street, suffered a cut on the back of the head when she fell late Saturday morning off a 10-foot wall and became wedged against an embankment in Wilbur. Officers Bernard Fowler and Raymond Wells responded to an emergency call to police headquarters, but reported that the girl had been rescued by neighbors before they arrived. She had fallen, they said, off the wall at the rear of the F. J. Zoller property, 587 Abeel street, and landed between the wall and an embankment. She was treated at Kingston Hospital for the cut, which required three sutures.

Chicago Mops Up

fairly mild, with temperatures in the 60s.

Partly cloudy, with a chance of a few showers, was today's forecast.

Rain fell in other parts of the country but falls in most sections were light. However, some fairly heavy amounts were reported across the northern Great Lakes region.

SCATTERED LIGHT showers fell in the central plains, central New England and in Florida while light to moderate showers hit sections along the Pacific northwest coast.

Temperatures were generally near seasonal levels for most of the country today.

The Chicago river rose five feet last night before engineers reversed the flow. The overflow poured into the Union Station basement, the basements of the Daily News building, the main post office sub-basement and basements of other structures along the south branch of the river.

But the locks at the mouth of the Chicago river were opened to save other nearby buildings from the cascading waters. A gigantic swell of water roared out into Lake Michigan as the river, temporarily returned to the original direction of its flow before it had been reversed by canals to the Illinois waterway.

The floood danger to the edges of the downtown district eased and in five hours the locks were closed and the river was back to near normal.

Harriman Tours Orange County

New York, Oct. 11 (AP) — Averell Harriman, Democratic-Liberal candidate for governor, left by automobile today for a campaign tour of his home county of Orange.

Earlier he had breakfast at his New York city residence with 15 members of the executive committee of the AFL Building and Construction Trades Council of Greater New York, which has endorsed him.

Howard McSpedon, president of the Trades Council, said the organization had endorsed Harriman because it liked his labor record.

Attending the breakfast were representatives of the 15 unions making up the Council.

The Orange county itinerary includes stops at Tuxedo; Harriman, which was named for the candidate's family; Newburgh and Middletown.

Harriman set off on his swing after declaring the Republicans have a policy of "helping the few and not the many." He said the policy is threatening the nation with economic stagnation.

Jury Will Hear Charges Petersen Gave Secret Data

Alexandria, Va., Oct. 11 (AP)—A specially called grand jury will hear next Monday charges that Joseph S. Petersen Jr., improperly obtained secret documents "with intent or reason to believe" they would help a foreign nation.

Federal Judge Albert V. Bryan today ordered a grand jury which sat last June to reconvene next Monday at 10 a. m. to hear the charges. The next regular grand jury would not have met until Dec. 6.

Petersen, who spent the weekend in jail for lack of bond, did not appear at today's proceedings but his wife and his brother, William Petersen of New Orleans, attended.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—The stock market dropped today after a somewhat higher start.

Gains and losses were rather narrow and spread out over a range of around a point in the early afternoon.

At the start, trading was vigorous with many large blocks on the tape. The pace slowed thereafter but it still was a bit better than 2,000,000 for the entire day. Friday's volume was 2,120,000 with the market a shade lower on balance.

Steels and oils started out higher, but both divisions soon ran into moderate selling that cut gains down and produced some losers.

Chrysler, which is introducing its new models today at a press preview, was higher, but General Motors was down.

Aircrafts were generally lower as were chemicals. Railroads and utilities remained steady. Airlines were unchanged to higher.

iron ore had shifted to the portside...in 30 minutes the water was running in the stacks and she sank. We had no life rafts aboard and were unable to get boats into the water.

"We tied boards together after we were in the water and made a raft. Capt. McMahon and the helmsman were trapped on the bridge and went down with the ship. Most of the men drowned in the heavy seas."

Another seaman Pedro De Jesus of the Bronx, N. Y., said the captain did everything he could to save the ship. And crewman John A. Davis, Barnardsville, N. C., reported, "it all happened faster than you could believe...I know the captain didn't get off."

Remy Rosario of New York city estimated he saw 300 to 400 sharks, and added:

"I saw a man just a few yards away when the sharks took off about half of his leg. He bled to death in about 7, 8 or 9 minutes, I would say. The blood in the water attracted more sharks and I kept kicking my feet to keep them away."

Rosario said his legs were sore from all the kicking, "but it saved my life."

Heading the Coast Guard's investigation of the maritime disaster was Capt. R. M. Hoyle, chief of staff for the 5th Coast Guard District with headquarters here. Others on the board were two other district officers, Cmdr. W. J. Conley and Lt. Cmdr. M. E. Meekins.

has removed "Communists, fellow travelers and security risks" from government payrolls, "not by the hundreds, but by the thousands."

Democratic National Chairman Stephen Mitchell has challenged the accuracy of Nixon's statement and at one point accused him of uttering "falsehoods."

MITCHELL'S POINT was a contention that Nixon was lumping actual subversives with such persons as loose talkers or drunks.

Today's report by the Civil Service Commission listed 618 cases in which there were allegations of sex perversion compared with 194 in March; 2,272 charges involving felonies and misdemeanors, compared with 605; and 3,657 lumped in a broad miscellaneous category, compared with 1,045 in that class last March.

The agency said the total in its breakdown of categories of derogatory information in the files exceeded the number listed as fired or resigned "because an employe might have in his file information falling under more than one category."

The largest number—284—of separations involving subversion was listed for the army, followed by 200 from the air force, 231 from the veterans administration and 227 from the navy.

In making public the similar compilation last March Philip Young, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, said "there is no figure in the table that includes the number of disloyal persons."

Injured in Fall

Rose Marie Butler, 8, of 580 Abeel street, suffered a cut on the back of the head when she fell late Saturday morning off a 10-foot wall and became wedged against an embankment in Wilbur. Officers Bernard Fowler and Raymond Wells responded to an emergency call to police headquarters, but reported that the girl had been rescued by neighbors before they arrived. She had fallen, they said, off the wall at the rear of the F. J. Zoller property, 587 Abeel street, and landed between the wall and an embankment. She was treated at Kingston Hospital for the cut, which required three sutures.

Chicago Mops Up

fairly mild, with temperatures in the 60s.

Partly cloudy, with a chance of a few showers, was today's forecast.

Rain fell in other parts of the country but falls in most sections were light. However, some fairly heavy amounts were reported across the northern Great Lakes region.

SCATTERED LIGHT showers fell in the central plains, central New England and in Florida while light to moderate showers hit sections along the Pacific northwest coast.

Temperatures were generally near seasonal levels for most of the country today.

The Chicago river rose five feet last night before engineers reversed the flow. The overflow poured into the Union Station basement, the basements of the Daily News building, the main post office sub-basement and basements of other structures along the south branch of the river.

But the locks at the mouth of the Chicago river were opened to save other nearby buildings from the cascading waters. A gigantic swell of water roared out into Lake Michigan as the river, temporarily returned to the original direction of its flow before it had been reversed by canals to the Illinois waterway.

The floood danger to the edges of the downtown district eased and in five hours the locks were closed and the river was back to near normal.

Harriman Tours Orange County

New York, Oct. 11 (AP) — Averell Harriman, Democratic-Liberal candidate for governor, left by automobile today for a campaign tour of his home county of Orange.

Earlier he had breakfast at his New York city residence with 15 members of the executive committee of the AFL Building and Construction Trades Council of Greater New York, which has endorsed him.

Howard McSpedon, president of the Trades Council, said the organization had endorsed Harriman because it liked his labor record.

Attending the breakfast were representatives of the 15 unions making up the Council.

The Orange county itinerary includes stops at Tuxedo; Harriman, which was named for the candidate's family; Newburgh and Middletown.

Harriman set off on his swing after declaring the Republicans have a policy of "helping the few and not the many." He said the policy is threatening the nation with economic stagnation.

PRICE INFLUENCES

Inflation-minded investors are helping to push common stock prices higher. Canvassing a dozen well-informed stockholders recently, I discovered that the boost of six billion dollars in the government's debt ceiling had revived the belief that our currency is still deteriorating.

As I have pointed out in this column for a long time, stockholders who are leery of the dollar's integrity will not only hesitate to take profits but they will also go into the markets to buy good equities with available capital. Thus, normal selling dries up and buying becomes accentuated. I think these are the principal forces behind present market strength.

It is not a healthy condition. Stock prices should be geared to earnings and dividends. When inflation influences prices, it should be a time of caution.

Another prime factor in high stock prices is taxes. For example: an investor bought 100 shares of a leading stock about six years ago for $5,000. It has been split, two for one. He can sell his 200 shares for $17,000. He will not do so. Why? For two reasons: (1) He would have to pay a capital gains tax of about $3,000 and (2) where could he re-invest the money to better advantage?

TAXES THUS BECOME an artificial prop to high common stock prices. It is my judgment that the law of diminishing returns is today vigorously operating in the field of capital gains. Billions of dollars of profits will not be taken when taxes are so high and the dollar is on the spot.

Common stock prices have never been hemmed in by so many economic forces. That is why price prognostication is so futile. Anybody buying prices and not values in these times may later need a psychiatrist.

Even if stock prices are encompassed by a great cloud of imponderables, most investors should have their dollars working. But I am convinced that today careful study should be made of every stock an investor contemplates buying.

Here is the procedure I would recommend to all prospective equity buyers:

1. After selecting, a stock, write down the company's volume of sales for 20 or 25 years. These records are available in brokerage offices.
2. Check all dividend payments during the period after investigation and, finally . . .
3. Ask yourself: "Will this company do as well or better in the coming 20-25 year period?"

If, after this search, a sound common stock can be bought that promises a yearly yield of five or six per cent, don't be afraid to buy it.

From the looks of things in America now, our military, social and economic commitments here and around the world will keep the dollar inflationary for some time. With such conditions, the average investor, after setting up ample cash reserves for all emergencies, should buy suitable dividend-paying equities of the best corporations.

Yes, prices of stocks will fluctuate. Very often widely. But values fairly priced are the things to hold. And wise investors will not be unduly concerned when prices rise or fall.

Deductions

Richmond, Va. (AP)—These tax people watch their own deductions, too. When Internal Revenue Service workers here were given a 45-minute lunch period instead of the former 30 minutes, the work day was promptly made 8:15 a. m. 5 p. m. instead of 8:15 a. m. to 4:45 p. m.

Pilot Retires

Norfolk, Va. (AP) — Captain Fred D. Cook, harbor pilot, has retired at 80, although he says he feels like he will live another 40 years. Capt. Cook, who has brought some of the navy's biggest battleships and aircraft carriers into Hampton Roads and Chesapeake Bay, says his biggest thrill came before the United States entry into World War 1. He was on duty at the pilot boat off Cape Henry when the huge German merchant submarine Deutchland surfaced nearby and asked for a pilot. Cook took her into Chesapeake Bay on her way to Baltimore. He says he believes he is the first American pilot to board an underwater merchant ship and bring her to safe anchorage.

Stevenson Sees Swing to Party

Albuquerque, Oct. 11 (AP)—Adlai Stevenson said last night he had "noted a tremendous swing toward the Democratic party" and added:

"I think the Democrats will win control of the House by 30 or 40 seats."

The 1952 Democratic presidential nominee said he could not speculate on his party's chances in the Senate in the November election "as to the numbers but I think the Democrats will take control."

He spoke at a press conference during a brief stop here on his way to Taos, N. M., where he plans to spend five days at the ranch of Stephen Mitchell, the Democratic national chairman.

TAXES AND POLITICS

What's happened to the nation's taxes in the last couple of years has become an issue in this election campaign, and the subject deserves a little examination.

The Republicans say they voted tax cuts amounting to several billions of dollars and overhauled a tax structure full of inequities and creaking with age.

The Democrats say most of the cut voted had actually been approved by a previous Democratic Congress, and that the rest are designed to benefit the rich with the thought that part of these gains may "trickle down" to the poor folk.

What is the story?

We acquired our high federal income tax level during World War II, when of course we had to raise as much current revenue as we could to hold the public debt down. But in the immediate postwar years, the incumbent Democratic regime did not enact or even propose a tax reduction. A $4 billion cut was approved by the Republican 80th Congress.

Later, upon the outbreak of the Korean war, new tax burdens were imposed until rates approached those prevailing before the cuts. The Democratic Congress in power did place "terminal" dates" on these increases both in personal and corporate levies.

Those dates came up in 1954, by which time the Republicans held the White House and Congress. The personal cuts were allowed to take effect as originally provided, but there was some modification in the corporate tax picture before reductions were voted.

The Democrats now wish to take credit for those personal and corporate tax cuts. But the fact is, former President Truman's last budget called for about $12 billion more in governmental outlays than the GOP Congress under President Eisenhower finally voted.

It is very difficult to see how such marked tax cuts would have been allowable if the budget had been $12 billion bigger this year. The savings that made them possible were Republican, not Democratic savings.

In 1954 the huge tax revision bill, aimed principally at modernizing the tax structure rather than providing specific tax rate relief, was pushed through by the GOP. Democrats assailed it on the ground it did nothing for the average consumer whose income was falling as the economy declined. They proposed to increase personal tax exemptions from $600 to $700.

But this bill was not intended to give general relief. It was the President's conclusion that the state of the budget would not at this time permit further cuts or boosts in exemptions. He believed more savings were necessary first.

The Democrats, not having the responsibility of the budget, gave no concern to this aspect of the problem. They simply urged what amounted to a tax cut, and belabored the GOP for being so inhumane as to deny voting one.

The record shows, however, that when they were in power they never really put into effect a single tax reduction except once to lift the World War II excess profits levy. The Democratic performance is a virtually unbroken catalog of tax increases.

Most or all of these boosts may well have been necessary. But they do not give the Democrats license to chide the GOP for not making tax cuts of a sort they never made when they had the chance.

WE CAN'T BUY PROSPERITY

In an editorial on the federal budget question, the Wall Street Journal observes that government can't buy prosperity, and adds: "All the government can buy with its manufactured credit money is an inflationary spree like the one we just recovered from."

We should be frequently reminded of that fact. During the inflationary spiral, the great majority of us confused symptoms with causes. We blamed business, labor, and everything but the principal cause of inflation—which is reckless spending and ever-increasing deficits with no real attempt to effect a cure.

If inflation comes again, it will come from the same cause.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

A DULL CAMPAIGN

The Congressional Election continues to be extraordinarily dull. While the politicians and political reporters try to make much of the 1954 campaign, the apathy among the citizens is marked in most parts of the country. It is as though too many voters did not care who is to be elected or if anyone is elected.

I noted this reaction particularly in the East. Massachusetts, for instance, is normally a politically conscious state where elections usually afford the citizens considerable excitement. There is no excitement this year, not even in Boston. In Connecticut, there is no Senatorial contest, but the Governorship should attract more attention than it does. The campaign is so gentle that one has to seek evidence of it as one passes through Connecticut cities. Of course, the politicians on both sides do plenty of forecasting, but I find no stimulating interest. It is astonishing to listen to Republicans express hopes and prayers that Senator Saltonstall will be re-elected.

In New York, the campaign is deader than I have ever seen it. Really, what is there to campaign about? Those who are not strictly partisan do not find it easy to make a sharp distinction between Irving Ives, the Republican, and Averell Harriman, the Democrat. What can be said against either of them? The issues which have been projected are synthetic and hardly concern the voters.

The partisans of Senator Joe McCarthy, and there are plenty of them in New York State, will not vote for either Jacob Javits or Franklin D. Rooseveit, Jr., as Attorney General. Many of them will not vote at all this year as a protest against the Javits nomination, Javits being regarded as closer to David Dubinsky's Liberal Party than to the Republican Party. But deeper than the objections to Javits is their protest against the treatment of Senator McCarthy. Many Democrats in Brooklyn and Queens voted for Eisenhower in 1952; they will not vote Republican in 1954. They, too, may not vote at all this year.

In New Jersey, the protest movement against Clifford Case, the Republican candidate for United States Senator, does not abate. It was hoped that the visit of Vice President Richard Nixon might result in some peace measures between the warring Republicans. If anything, his visit intensified the fight. In New Jersey, two movements have appeared: one to write in the name of Fred Hartley, thus indicating opposition to Case; the other, to boycott the election by staying away from the polls. Hartley has rejected the write-in vote, but those Republicans who favor this method of opposing Case are ignoring his wishes. Whichever method is employed, the Republican vote for Case will be reduced. I have not heard one person, Republican or Democrat, whose judgment could be counted on, say that Case will be elected. Many of those whom I have interrogated are old friends who speak about this in confidence since they are actively working in the campaign to elect Case.

With the exception of the internecine quarrel in New Jersey, it is possible to say that the apathy is as thick as a London fog. After the great enthusiasm of the 1952 campaign, the 1954 attitude is startling even if the fact that this is not a Presidential year is taken into consideration. This is particularly true when it is realized that the Republicans have had no working majority in the Senate and little of it in the House of Representatives, and that it is damaging to the prestige of a President for an election to go against him in the second half of his first term.

Thus far, President Eisenhower has made no impression during this campaign. The little that he has said has not influenced voters. In critical states, such as Idaho and Michigan, where Republican candidates for the Senate are in danger, the President might have swung some votes. Perhaps he still might do it by a fighting speech in which he pleads for his party's victory. To be of any value such a speech must be valiantly partisan, something of the order of the Martin, Barton and Fish speech with which Franklin Roosevelt regaled the nation. If that is not forthcoming, it looks at this moment as though too many Republicans will be defeated to make a Republican working majority in the Senate possible.

TRAINING FOR GENERAL PRACTICE

Many physicians today have become specialists in their various branches — obstetrics, gynecology, urology, neurology, psychiatry, physical medicine, geriatrics — and although they have certainly learned their specialty well, many patients feel that there is something missing in the field of medicine. This is the general, all-round practitioner, the man with the all-round ability to handle every case as he meets it.

In the Journal of the American Medical Association we learn that a step has been made in this direction, namely a general practice course which has been made part of the undergraduate program at Charing Cross Hospital Medical School. A full account of this course has been published in the British Medical Journal of May, 1954.

"The student resides with the general practitioner for three weeks and accompanies him on all his calls. He is introduced to the patients as a student physician and examines all the patients both in the office and on the visits. So far no patient has objected. The general practitioner, after the day's work, discusses each case in more detail.

"The student learns general medical care, doctor-patient relationships, medical ethics, the application of his theories of medicine to actual practice, care of the young and the aged, midwifery, common ailments, early symptoms of serious disease, treatment of serious disease in the home, emergencies in general practice, the use of hospital and other facilities, preventive, social and industrial medicine, and methods of health education at first hand."

During his three-week course, one student attended 16 morning and 12 evening office hours and three prenatal clinics, seeing a total of 674 patients. It is interesting to see the variety of ailments met with in these three weeks. There was acute inflammation of the ear, thrombophlebitis, cancer of the esophagus, high blood pressure, a variety of skin diseases, Raynaud's disease and many others.

It is strongly felt that this course has something very valuable to offer the student; it widens his field of vision beyond the boundaries of the hospital and he sees the only branch of medicine left in which he can obtain a general picture of the whole field of medicine. He should become increasingly aware that the patient is not just a "case" and that the spceialist can fulfill his proper aims only when his particular knowledge is fitted in with the whole general care of the patient. Just as a patient is indivisible, so "medicine" is also indivisible and the over all picture of the patient is the true one.

Courses such as this should do much to restore the close doctor-patient relationship which has tended to be overlooked in our modern specialization.

"The Flood's Receding---And of All Places!"

Larsen's Washington News Notebook

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

Washington (NEA)—The Pentagon is dumfounded at the amazingly successful psychological testing the Communists did on U. S. prisoners of war in Korea.

Just as soon as possible after a man was captured he was forced to write out a detailed history of his life and fill out a questionnaire which sought intimate details of his marriage, financial standing, education, hobbies and relations with his parents.

Not having been warned about this, and knowing they were not revealing military information most of the men complied with the request fully. The shock of capture also tended to make them very truthful and cooperative in going along with this Commie request.

Unfortunately the results of these tests told the Reds exactly who among the prisoners would be most susceptible to brain-washing. Generally they looked for men of better-than-average intelligence who might not have had too much education, had unhappy marriages or who were in some financial trouble at home. Scores of factors were apparently weighed in this selection.

They didn't bother with the men who were obviously well adjusted, had no bitterness toward their general lot in life or who expressed very firm conservative political beliefs.

EVERY POW WAS EXPOSED to some "education" in communism. But they saved their main efforts for those who appeared most likely to succumb to the higher science of brain-washing. And although it only ended up selling about 200 American soldiers on some kind of defection, out of 3,600 POWs, it's still regarded as a dangerously successful effort.

This problem and a half dozen others in connection with the Korean POWs are now under study by numerous commissions and groups in the Pentagon. Psychologists, doctors, educators and lawyers have been called in on the question

When the implications of the POW situation began to dawn on the Pentagon after Operation Big-Switch, demands were made for tougher training, as a possible solution. It's now believed that training in the direction of being tougher is not the answer.

One thing being considered is an indoctrination of all men going into combat on how to gather evidence of defections in POW camps. If the men had known more about this before Korea the services would have better cases against the defectors today.

IF THE MEN HAD BEEN better schooled in proper POW conduct it would have been a deterrent for many of the prisoners who got in trouble. All they were told was to give only name, rank and serial number.

There are military cases which have held that duress is no legal defense against treason. That principle is stiil held to. But how long must a man resist duress before committing some act short of treason? The service regulations are vague on that point.

Should a man cooperate with the nemy to keep other prisoners alive? That's another question military law does not spell out in satisfactory detail.

This point was the defense of Lt.-Col. Harry Fleming who was found guilty of collaborating with the enemy and was cashiered out of the service as a sentence. It's going to be the defense of several among a dozen more men about to be tried for illegal conduct in POW camps.

IT'S RECOGNIZED THAT any man has a breaking point after subjection to torture. But how do you define that breaking point? And how do you define torture? Some prisoners broke under solitary confinement. Some didn't break under repeated beatings or when faced with mock firing squads.

The whole POW problem as it varies between the army and air force is another area of study. Some air force experts believe that the shock of being captured is worse for a pilot or crewman who has just crashed, making them less accountable for their actions later.

The army challenges this opinion claiming that the shock of capture comes on top of the shock of combat, making it greater for the men on the front than for downed pilots.

The net result of all of this study is bound to be a more detailed writing of the regulations governing all phases of POW conduct and a more complete indoctrination of men in combat on what to expect when they are captured by Communists.

Sensation Is Uncovered in Arrest of Petersen on Security Charge

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Oct. 11 — The most sensational security scandal the United States government has encountered since Klaus Fuchs stole the secret of the atom bomb for Russia has just been uncovered in the arrest by the FBI of Joseph S. Petersen Jr., professor of physics and mathematics, employed for the last 13 years in the National Security Agency.

This agency—which is not to be confused with the National Security Council — is wholly within the Department of Defense. It used to be in the army. It is the most "hush-hush" operation in Washington. For it deals with the whole problem of codes and ciphers used in communicating secret information to and from other countries throughout the world.

If anyone could know the secrets of this agency he could decipher and read all the messages going back and forth, not only between military installations of the United States here and abroad, but between the United States and all its embassies and legations in foreign countries.

Petersen is charged with receiving into his own possession, outside the Offices of the National Security Agency, highly secret documents beginning in 1948 and running until December 1952. During part of that period the Korean war was going on. Whether what was learned by foreign officials outside the United States as a result of this leak played a part in the unhappy result of the Korean war is not yet known.

But this much is clear — the Petersen documents found their way into the hands of a foreign government which is being described as friendly. This means merely that the government concerned was not a Communist country. But it does not mean that the information failed to reach one or more Communist governments. For if the Communists had a man planted in the offices of a friendly government abroad, a surreptitious means of communication from Washington to Moscow was thereby opened up.

Although the government in question to which the Petersen documents were transmitted is not Great Britain, it may be noted in passing that Donald MacLean, who was for a long time in charge of the "American desk" in the British Foreign Office, fled in May 1951 behind the iron curtain.

The new scandal points up clearly one thing — that the United States Senate is allowing itself to become the victim of a "red herring" when it proposes to spend a special session debating whether Senator McCarthy used polite language to a general or to a senator while at the same time the weaknesses of the American security system are not being investigated.

The Congress established a Senate and a House committee on governmental operations. Senator McCarthy as head of the Senate committee has been trying to focus attention on the weakness of the present security system, only to find himself persecuted and prosecuted. But the facts which are emerging now indicate that a coverup job has been done on the real looseness inside executive agencies. It is not the result of any disloyalty among officials here, but it is the direct consequence of administrative incompetence.

To this day all the facts about the Fort Monmouth scandal have not been revealed, and determined efforts have been made to hush up what happened there. At Fort Monmouth are the secrets relating to the newest methods of detecting the approach of enemy bombers bearing atomic bombs. This is important to the safety of the people of the United States. Yet the military recommendations that certain things be cleaned up at Fort Monmouth were overruled or neglected by civilian boards whose acts have never been exposed to public view. Why were the army's own recommendations so long neglected at Fort Monmouth? What civilians were mixed up in this neglect of duty? These are pertinent questions, and while so far as is known thus far what happened at Fort Monmout has no direct connection with the Petersen scandal, the underlying weakness of the symtem in both places is just the same.

The American people do not know that the FBI has nothing to do with the operations of Fort Monmouth or the National Security Agency, and that military personnel have the primary responsibility for surveillance. Conceding the loyalty and conscientious character of the military personnel engaged in intelligence work, the question arises at another level—the civilian boards which alone evaluate the evidence concerning personnel. Who supervises these civilian boards in the different government departments? Nobody except theoretically the busy chief of the agency itself.

There is no overall review board in existence today on either loyalty or security matters. The Truman administration had a loyalty review board, but none that was empowered to review security risk cases. The Eisenhower administration has moved a step back in abolishing the overall review board on loyalty without substituting a new board to check up on all the departmental boards in both loyalty and security cases.

Why wasn't Petersen checked and re-checked during the last four years? How many other persons are there who have not been checked and who may have been or now are leaking secrets to outside parties? It is basically the system that's at fault. Rather than spending its time arguing about the manners of the senator from Wisconsin the Senate should be setting up a committee to find out who promoted Peress to be a major, why the civilian security boards in the Army did not accept military recommendations at Fort Monmouth in certain security matters, and why loose and inefficient methods still prevail which make it possible for the security of the United States to be damaged seriously as in the Petersen case.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Washington, Oct. 10—It was just my luck, which gets worse and worse, to be right here in our nation's capital but ignorant of the fact that the First Lady of the World was receiving from Senor Roberto Heurtematte, the ambassador of Panama, an enameled bottlecap called the Order of Vasco Nunez De Balboa for services ambiguously described as "her contribution to the intellectual, cultural and political world." Caught flat-footed, I had to start out the next day to try to run down the facts with a not exactly brooding suspicion. I suspected that Senor Bobbo, as they call him in the diplomatic corps, referred to the lack of education which My Leader's relict has set forth in her memoirs; the marital and fiscal conduct of her bairns, and her personal infliction of Bubblehead Wallace on our country with war a'making.

I wilfully entertained a wicked thought that Senor Bobbo was fetching La Boca a sly Latin dig in the slats with this generalization about her influence on the intellectual, cultural and political trend of these times. I can still dream, for the issue remains unsettled after serious efforts to put the question to Bobbo. I phoned a little after three next day and a nice voice said "this is the answering service; may I take a message?"

I said no, I had to speak to senor ambassador on a matter of state. Do you think I misrepresented? I must take it up with my pastor because this is a borderline case. After all, I did want to ask questions for my constituents, who are noted for the vehemence of their opinions on this lady. I guess everyone's opinion of her record as an exemplar of American motherhood is vehement one way or another I wanted to ask Bobbo first whether this was a rib. And who thought it up? And how many of these baubles were outstanding in the young life of his own glorious Republican? To what other gringoes had they been given? Paul Robeson, perhaps? Paul Draper? Lucille Ball? Vito Marcantonio? Harry Bridges? Anybody named Flanders?

It didn't even occur to me that Senor Bobbo could have been serious. I have been brain-washed by Wall Street and Fascist-minded propagandists, so the thought never occurred that he could have been any more serious about this than Clare Luce was the time she looked Dreamie Dead in the eye and called her the first lady of the universe, at least.

The answering girl said "they usually open up again at three, but they are a little late this afternoon."

I thought, well, Bobbo's siesta goes into extra innings today so he can recuperate from the coverage in the Washington Post.

The Post had a picture of La Boca three columns wide (and she is over a column wide herself, these days, even in profile) and a boss-head on the society page. It read "A Great Lady Decorated." The author of this, a Mrs. McNair, represented by a slightly melancholy thumbnail at the top of her copy, was playing it straight.

Mrs. McNair said: "A great lady was decorated yesterday by the Panama ambassador. She's Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, widow of the President," as if we didn't know that, Mrs. McNair! Only we called him our Leader.

But to return to Mrs. McNair's interpretation of a diplomatic double entendre: "As she stood with Ambassador Roberto Heurtematte in the F. street club's drawing room yesterday, old friends looked at her and said: 'She's like French wine; she improves with age.'"

Oho! So Bobbo didn't hold the do at his embassy, hey? That certainly seems peculiar, pitching a do for the first lady of the world at a semi-public club where there may be three or four clambakes going on all at once and babes that don't speak sitting close enough to jab each other with oyster forks. Like the time Joe McCarthy twisted Drew Pearson's arm in a so-called rest room when the guy in the white coat came running with yells of "hey, Mistah Senator: You didn't drop no dime!"

But that was another club.

Nevertheless, what is the idea, anyway, Senor Bobbo? Isn't the first lady of the world good enough to set foot in your Embassy? You might bear in mind that this great lady's uncle Ted. the brother of Elliott the Lush who was her daddy, tore your noble little republic out of Colombia and set it up as Panama so as to control the canal. Yet you take his niece to a club to hang this badge on her.

I suppose it was the maid's day out. A likely story, Bobbo. A swell diplomat you are. And a hell of a humorist, too!

Do you want to follow Joe E. Lewis into the Copa?

Then Mrs. McNair said Mrs. Bobbo wasn't there because she wasn't able to pack in time to leave Newport. Wars have blazed, Republics have been wiped out over less, Senor Bobbo. But don't worry. You made a lot of American friends for Panama. At half-past four, I phoned again.

Again the answer-girl said they weren's open yet.

All right, to heck with it. Nobody can say I didn't try. And as long as I don't know the contrary I can dwell in my own fool's heaven.

TAXES AND POLITICS

What's happened to the nation's taxes in the last couple of years has become an issue in this election campaign, and the subject deserves a little examination.

The Republicans say they voted tax cuts amounting to several billions of dollars and overhauled a tax structure full of inequities and creaking with age.

The Democrats say most of the cut voted had actually been approved by a previous Democratic Congress, and that the rest are designed to benefit the rich with the thought that part of these gains may "trickle down" to the poor folk.

What is the story?

We acquired our high federal income tax level during World War II, when of course we had to raise as much current revenue as we could to hold the public debt down. But in the immediate postwar years, the incumbent Democratic regime did not enact or even propose a tax reduction. A $4 billion cut was approved by the Republican 80th Congress.

Later, upon the outbreak of the Korean war, new tax burdens were imposed until rates approached those prevailing before the cuts. The Democratic Congress in power did place "terminal" dates" on these increases both in personal and corporate levies.

Those dates came up in 1954, by which time the Republicans held the White House and Congress. The personal cuts were allowed to take effect as originally provided, but there was some modification in the corporate tax picture before reductions were voted.

The Democrats now wish to take credit for those personal and corporate tax cuts. But the fact is, former President Truman's last budget called for about $12 billion more in governmental outlays than the GOP Congress under President Eisenhower finally voted.

It is very difficult to see how such marked tax cuts would have been allowable if the budget had been $12 billion bigger this year. The savings that made them possible were Republican, not Democratic savings.

In 1954 the huge tax revision bill, aimed principally at modernizing the tax structure rather than providing specific tax rate relief, was pushed through by the GOP. Democrats assailed it on the ground it did nothing for the average consumer whose income was falling as the economy declined. They proposed to increase personal tax exemptions from $600 to $700.

But this bill was not intended to give general relief. It was the President's conclusion that the state of the budget would not at this time permit further cuts or boosts in exemptions. He believed more savings were necessary first.

The Democrats, not having the responsibility of the budget, gave no concern to this aspect of the problem. They simply urged what amounted to a tax cut, and belabored the GOP for being so inhumane as to deny voting one.

The record shows, however, that when they were in power they never really put into effect a single tax reduction except once to lift the World War II excess profits levy. The Democratic performance is a virtually unbroken catalog of tax increases.

Most or all of these boosts may well have been necessary. But they do not give the Democrats license to chide the GOP for not making tax cuts of a sort they never made when they had the chance.

WE CAN'T BUY PROSPERITY

In an editorial on the federal budget question, the Wall Street Journal observes that government can't buy prosperity, and adds: "All the government can buy with its manufactured credit money is an inflationary spree like the one we just recovered from."

We should be frequently reminded of that fact. During the inflationary spiral, the great majority of us confused symptoms with causes. We blamed business, labor, and everything but the principal cause of inflation—which is reckless spending and ever-increasing deficits with no real attempt to effect a cure.

If inflation comes again, it will come from the same cause.

A DULL CAMPAIGN

The Congressional Election continues to be extraordinarily dull. While the politicians and political reporters try to make much of the 1954 campaign, the apathy among the citizens is marked in most parts of the country. It is as though too many voters did not care who is to be elected or if anyone is elected.

I noted this reaction particularly in the East. Massachusetts, for instance, is normally a politically conscious state where elections usually afford the citizens considerable excitement. There is no excitement this year, not even in Boston. In Connecticut, there is no Senatorial contest, but the Governorship should attract more attention than it does. The campaign is so gentle that one has to seek evidence of it as one passes through Connecticut cities. Of course, the politicians on both sides do plenty of forecasting, but I find no stimulating interest. Those who are not strictly partisan do not find it easy to make a sharp distinction between Irving Ives, the Republican, and Averell Harriman, the Democrat. What can be said against either of them? The issues which have been projected are synthetic and hardly concern the voters.

The partisans of Senator Joe McCarthy, and there are plenty of them in New York State, will not vote for either Jacob Javits or Franklin D. Rooseveit, Jr., as Attorney General. Many of them will not vote at all this year as a protest against the Javits nomination, Javits being regarded as closer to David Dubinsky's Liberal Party than to the Republican Party. But deeper than the objections to Javits is their protest against the treatment of Senator McCarthy. Many Democrats in Brooklyn and Queens voted for Eisenhower in 1952; they will not vote Republican in 1954. They, too, may not vote at all this year.

In New Jersey, the protest movement against Clifford Case, the Republican candidate for United States Senator, does not abate. It was hoped that the visit of Vice President Richard Nixon might result in some peace measures between the warring Republicans. If anything, his visit intensified the fight. In New Jersey, two movements have appeared: one to write in the name of Fred Hartley, thus indicating opposition to Case; the other, to boycott the election by staying away from the polls. Hartley has rejected the write-in vote, but those Republicans who favor this method of opposing Case are ignoring his wishes. Whichever method is employed, the Republican vote for Case will be reduced. I have not heard one person, Republican or Democrat, whose judgment could be counted on, say that Case will be elected. Many of those whom I have interrogated are old friends who speak about this in confidence since they are actively working in the campaign to elect Case.

With the exception of the internecine quarrel in New Jersey, it is possible to say that the apathy is as thick as a London fog. After the great enthusiasm of the 1952 campaign, the 1954 attitude is startling even if the fact that this is not a Presidential year is taken into consideration. TRAINING FOR GENERAL PRACTICE

Many physicians today have become specialists in their various branches — obstetrics, gynecology, urology, neurology, psychiatry, physical medicine, geriatrics — and although they have certainly learned their specialty well, many patients feel that there is something missing in the field of medicine. This is the general, all-round practitioner, the man with the all-round ability to handle every case as he meets it.

In the Journal of the American Medical Association we learn that a step has been made in this direction, namely a general practice course which has been made part of the undergraduate program at Charing Cross Hospital Medical School. A full account of this course has been published in the British Medical Journal of May, 1954.

"The student resides with the general practitioner for three weeks and accompanies him on all his calls. He is introduced to the patients as a student physician and examines all the patients both in the office and on the visits. So far no patient has objected. The general practitioner, after the day's work, discusses each case in more detail.

"The student learns general medical care, doctor-patient relationships, medical ethics, the application of his theories of medicine to actual practice, care of the young and the aged, midwifery, common ailments, early symptoms of serious disease, treatment of serious disease in the home, emergencies in general practice, the use of hospital and other facilities, preventive, social and industrial medicine, and methods of health education at first hand."

During his three-week course, one student attended 16 morning and 12 evening office hours and three prenatal clinics, seeing a total of 674 patients. It is interesting to see the variety of ailments met with in these three weeks. There was acute inflammation of the ear, thrombophlebitis, cancer of the esophagus, high blood pressure, a variety of skin diseases, Raynaud's disease and many others.

It is strongly felt that this course has something very valuable to offer the student; it widens his field of vision beyond the boundaries of the hospital and he sees the only branch of medicine left in which he can obtain a general picture of the whole field of medicine. He should become increasingly aware that the patient is not just a "case" and that the spceialist can fulfill his proper aims only when his particular knowledge is fitted in with the whole general care of the patient. Just as a patient is indivisible, so "medicine" is also indivisible and the over all picture of the patient is the true one.

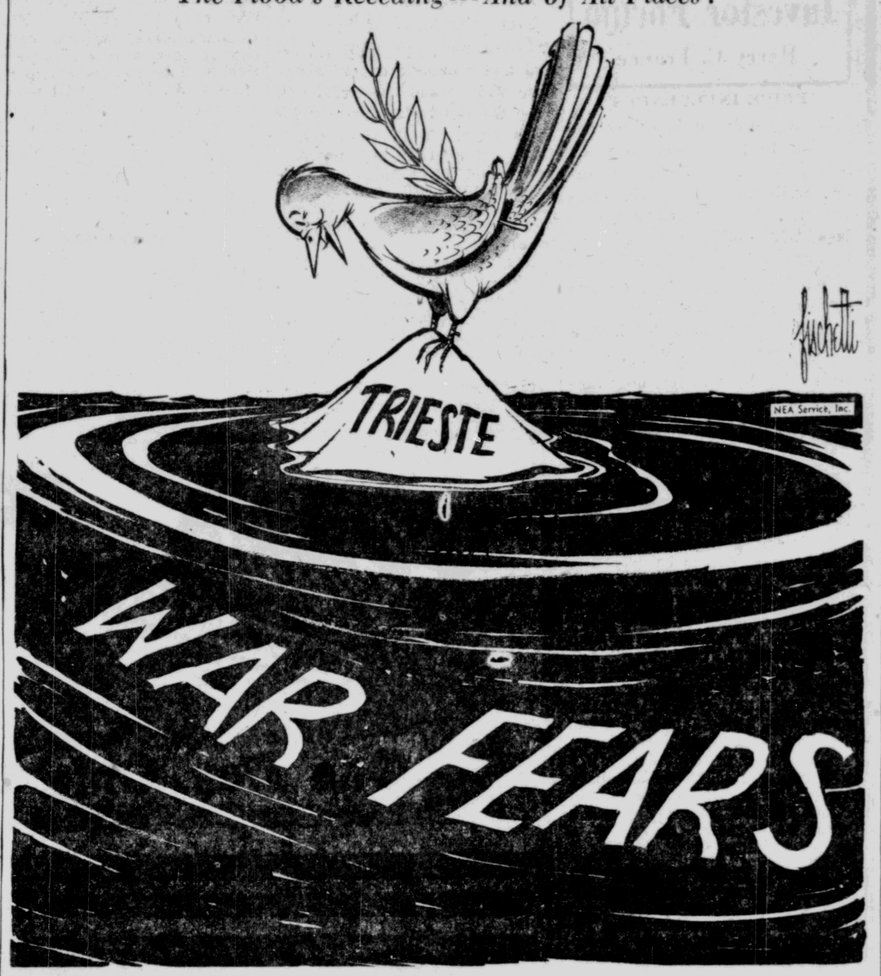

Courses such as this should do much to restore the close doctor-patient relationship which has tended to be overlooked in our modern specialization.

"The Flood's Receding---And of All Places!"

Larsen's Washington News Notebook

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

Washington (NEA)—The Pentagon is dumfounded at the amazingly successful psychological testing the Communists did on U. S. prisoners of war in Korea.

Just as soon as possible after a man was captured he was forced to write out a detailed history of his life and fill out a questionnaire which sought intimate details of his marriage, financial standing, education, hobbies and relations with his parents.

Not having been warned about this, and knowing they were not revealing military information most of the men complied with the request fully. The shock of capture also tended to make them very truthful and cooperative in going along with this Commie request.

Unfortunately the results of these tests told the Reds exactly who among the prisoners would be most susceptible to brain-washing. Generally they looked for men of better-than-average intelligence who might not have had too much education, had unhappy marriages or who were in some financial trouble at home. Scores of factors were apparently weighed in this selection.

They didn't bother with the men who were obviously well adjusted, had no bitterness toward their general lot in life or who expressed very firm conservative political beliefs.

EVERY POW WAS EXPOSED to some "education" in communism. But they saved their main efforts for those who appeared most likely to succumb to the higher science of brain-washing. And although it only ended up selling about 200 American soldiers on some kind of defection, out of 3,600 POWs, it's still regarded as a dangerously successful effort.

This problem and a half dozen others in connection with the Korean POWs are now under study by numerous commissions and groups in the Pentagon. Psychologists, doctors, educators and lawyers have been called in on the question

When the implications of the POW situation began to dawn on the Pentagon after Operation Big-Switch, demands were made for tougher training, as a possible solution. It's now believed that training in the direction of being tougher is not the answer.

One thing being considered is an indoctrination of all men going into combat on how to gather evidence of defections in POW camps. If the men had known more about this before Korea the services would have better cases against the defectors today.

IF THE MEN HAD BEEN better schooled in proper POW conduct it would have been a deterrent for many of the prisoners who got in trouble. All they were told was to give only name, rank and serial number.

There are military cases which have held that duress is no legal defense against treason. That principle is still held to. But how long must a man resist duress before committing some act short of treason? The service regulations are vague on that point.

Should a man cooperate with the nemy to keep other prisoners alive? That's another question military law does not spell out in satisfactory detail.

This point was the defense of Lt.-Col. Harry Fleming who was found guilty of collaborating with the enemy and was cashiered out of the service as a sentence. It's going to be the defense of several among a dozen more men about to be tried for illegal conduct in POW camps.

IT'S RECOGNIZED THAT any man has a breaking point after subjection to torture. But how do you define that breaking point? And how do you define torture? Some prisoners broke under solitary confinement. Some didn't break under repeated beatings or when faced with mock firing squads.

The whole POW problem as it varies between the army and air force is another area of study. Some air force experts believe that the shock of being captured is worse for a pilot or crewman who has just crashed, making them less accountable for their actions later.

The army challenges this opinion claiming that the shock of capture comes on top of the shock of combat, making it greater for the men on the front than for downed pilots.

The net result of all of this study is bound to be a more detailed writing of the regulations governing all phases of POW conduct and a more complete indoctrination of men in combat on what to expect when they are captured by Communists.

Fort Eustis, Va. (AP)—A dozen big diesels and 14 steam locomotives operate here on a 36-mile railway system which isn't expected to make money. It is the only railway system in the United States operated entirely by military personnel. The purpose is to train men to operate and maintain military railroads in foreign countries.

Sensation Is Uncovered in Arrest of Petersen on Security Charge

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Oct. 11 — The most sensational security scandal the United States government has encountered since Klaus Fuchs stole the secret of the atom bomb for Russia has just been uncovered in the arrest by the FBI of Joseph S. Petersen Jr., professor of physics and mathematics, employed for the last 13 years in the National Security Agency.

This agency—which is not to be confused with the National Security Council — is wholly within the Department of Defense. It used to be in the army. It is the most "hush-hush" operation in Washington. For it deals with the whole problem of codes and ciphers used in communicating secret information to and from other countries throughout the world.

If anyone could know the secrets of this agency he could decipher and read all the messages going back and forth, not only between military installations of the United States here and abroad, but between the United States and all its embassies and legations in foreign countries.

Petersen is charged with receiving into his own possession, outside the Offices of the National Security Agency, highly secret documents beginning in 1948 and running until December 1952. During part of that period the Korean war was going on. Whether what was learned by foreign officials outside the United States as a result of this leak played a part in the unhappy result of the Korean war is not yet known.

But this much is clear — the Petersen documents found their way into the hands of a foreign government which is being described as friendly. This means merely that the government concerned was not a Communist country. But it does not mean that the information failed to reach one or more Communist governments. For if the Communists had a man planted in the offices of a friendly government abroad, a surreptitious means of communication from Washington to Moscow was thereby opened up.

Although the government in question to which the Petersen documents were transmitted is not Great Britain, it may be noted in passing that Donald MacLean, who was for a long time in charge of the "American desk" in the British Foreign Office, fled in May 1951 behind the iron curtain.

The new scandal points up clearly one thing — that the United States Senate is allowing itself to become the victim of a "red herring" when it proposes to spend a special session debating whether Senator McCarthy used polite language to a general or to a senator while at the same time the weaknesses of the American security system are not being investigated.

The Congress established a Senate and a House committee on governmental operations. Senator McCarthy as head of the Senate committee has been trying to focus attention on the weakness of the present security system, only to find himself persecuted and prosecuted. But the facts which are emerging now indicate that a coverup job has been done on the real looseness inside executive agencies. It is not the result of any disloyalty among officials here, but it is the direct consequence of administrative incompetence.

To this day all the facts about the Fort Monmouth scandal have not been revealed, and determined efforts have been made to hush up what happened there. At Fort Monmouth are the secrets relating to the newest methods of detecting the approach of enemy bombers bearing atomic bombs. This is important to the safety of the people of the United States. Yet the military recommendations that certain things be cleaned up at Fort Monmouth were overruled or neglected by civilian boards whose acts have never been exposed to public view. Why were the army's own recommendations so long neglected at Fort Monmouth? What civilians were mixed up in this neglect of duty? These are pertinent questions, and while so far as is known thus far what happened at Fort Monmout has no direct connection with the Petersen scandal, the underlying weakness of the symtem in both places is just the same.

The American people do not know that the FBI has nothing to do with the operations of Fort Monmouth or the National Security Agency, and that military personnel have the primary responsibility for surveillance. Conceding the loyalty and conscientious character of the military personnel engaged in intelligence work, the question arises at another level—the civilian boards which alone evaluate the evidence concerning personnel. Who supervises these civilian boards in the different government departments? Nobody except theoretically the busy chief of the agency itself.

There is no overall review board in existence today on either loyalty or security matters. The Truman administration had a loyalty review board, but none that was empowered to review security risk cases. The Eisenhower administration has moved a step back in abolishing the overall review board on loyalty without substituting a new board to check up on all the departmental boards in both loyalty and security cases.

Why wasn't Petersen checked and re-checked during the last four years? How many other persons are there who have not been checked and who may have been or now are leaking secrets to outside parties? It is basically the system that's at fault. Rather than spending its time arguing about the manners of the senator from Wisconsin the Senate should be setting up a committee to find out who promoted Peress to be a major, why the civilian security boards in the Army did not accept military recommendations at Fort Monmouth in certain security matters, and why loose and inefficient methods still prevail which make it possible for the security of the United States to be damaged seriously as in the Petersen case.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Washington, Oct. 10—It was just my luck, which gets worse and worse, to be right here in our nation's capital but ignorant of the fact that the First Lady of the World was receiving from Senor Roberto Heurtematte, the ambassador of Panama, an enameled bottlecap called the Order of Vasco Nunez De Balboa for services ambiguously described as "her contribution to the intellectual, cultural and political world." Caught flat-footed, I had to start out the next day to try to run down the facts with a not exactly brooding suspicion. I suspected that Senor Bobbo, as they call him in the diplomatic corps, referred to the lack of education which My Leader's relict has set forth in her memoirs; the marital and fiscal conduct of her bairns, and her personal infliction of Bubblehead Wallace on our country with war a'making.

I wilfully entertained a wicked thought that Senor Bobbo was fetching La Boca a sly Latin dig in the slats with this generalization about her influence on the intellectual, cultural and political trend of these times. I can still dream, for the issue remains unsettled after serious efforts to put the question to Bobbo. I phoned a little after three next day and a nice voice said "this is the answering service; may I take a message?"

I said no, I had to speak to senor ambassador on a matter of state. Do you think I misrepresented? I must take it up with my pastor because this is a borderline case. After all, I did want to ask questions for my constituents, who are noted for the vehemence of their opinions on this lady. I guess everyone's opinion of her record as an exemplar of American motherhood is vehement one way or another I wanted to ask Bobbo first whether this was a rib. And who thought it up? And how many of these baubles were outstanding in the young life of his own glorious Republican? To what other gringoes had they been given? Paul Robeson, perhaps? Paul Draper? Lucille Ball? Vito Marcantonio? Harry Bridges? Anybody named Flanders?

It didn't even occur to me that Senor Bobbo could have been serious. I have been brain-washed by Wall Street and Fascist-minded propagandists, so the thought never occurred that he could have been any more serious about this than Clare Luce was the time she looked Dreamie Dead in the eye and called her the first lady of the universe, at least.

The answering girl said "they usually open up again at three, but they are a little late this afternoon."

I thought, well, Bobbo's siesta goes into extra innings today so he can recuperate from the coverage in the Washington Post.

The Post had a picture of La Boca three columns wide (and she is over a column wide herself, these days, even in profile) and a boss-head on the society page. It read "A Great Lady Decorated." The author of this, a Mrs. McNair, represented by a slightly melancholy thumbnail at the top of her copy, was playing it straight.

Mrs. McNair said: "A great lady was decorated yesterday by the Panama ambassador. She's Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, widow of the President," as if we didn't know that, Mrs. McNair! Only we called him our Leader.

But to return to Mrs. McNair's interpretation of a diplomatic double entendre: "As she stood with Ambassador Roberto Heurtematte in the F. street club's drawing room yesterday, old friends looked at her and said: 'She's like French wine; she improves with age.'"

Oho! So Bobbo didn't hold the do at his embassy, hey? That certainly seems peculiar, pitching a do for the first lady of the world at a semi-public club where there may be three or four clambakes going on all at once and babes that don't speak sitting close enough to jab each other with oyster forks. Like the time Joe McCarthy twisted Drew Pearson's arm in a so-called rest room when the guy in the white coat came running with yells of "hey, Mistah Senator: You didn't drop no dime!"

But that was another club.

Nevertheless, what is the idea, anyway, Senor Bobbo? Isn't the first lady of the world good enough to set foot in your Embassy? You might bear in mind that this great lady's uncle Ted, the brother of Elliott the Lush who was her daddy, tore your noble little republic out of Colombia and set it up as Panama so as to control the canal. Yet you take his niece to a club to hang this badge on her.

I suppose it was the maid's day out. A likely story, Bobbo. A swell diplomat you are. And a hell of a humorist, too!

Do you want to follow Joe E. Lewis into the Copa?

Then Mrs. McNair said Mrs. Bobbo wasn't there because she wasn't able to pack in time to leave Newport. Wars have blazed, Republics have been wiped out over less, Senor Bobbo. But don't worry. You made a lot of American friends for Panama. At half-past four, I phoned again.

Again the answer-girl said they weren's open yet.

All right, to heck with it. Nobody can say I didn't try. And as long as I don't know the contrary I can dwell in my own fool's heaven.

Red China Moves In New Army

Taipeh, Formosa, Oct. 11 (AP)—Red China has moved a fourth army into the mainland Amoy area opposite the Nationalists' Quemoy Island, the official Central News Agency said today.

Nationalist bombers dropped 100,000 propaganda leaflets last night on coastal cities of Fukien Province, across the 150-mile wide Formosa Straits.

Military spokesmen said the recently customary artillery duel between Quemoy and Amoy did not occur.

Nationalist leaders brushed off Red China's latest complaint to the United Nations that U. S. military activity on Formosa amounts to "armed invasion" as mere repetition of an old propaganda theme.

London's Papers Idle

London, Oct. 11 (AP)—A press room strike touched off by an interunion quarrel over 18 men stopped the publication of all London's 13 morning and evening newspapers today. Their circulations total 20 million copies daily. Of Britain's nationally read journals, only the liberal Manchester Guardian was not affected. Unlike the others, the Guardian does not belong to the National Newspaper Proprietors Assn., whose members are pledged not to publish when a strike stops the presses of any of the group.

Crump Still Critical

WOODSTOCK NEWS

By RICHARD E. THIBAUT, Jr.

Mothers to Aid Girl Scout Drive

Woodstock, Oct. 11—There are many aspects of Girl Scouting which might be stressed at this crucial time of year for the organization when the drive for funds to carry on its work approaches. It is probably most important that the spotlight for a time fall on the mothers of Girl Scouts, for they are the people who will be calling at local homes sometime during the drive period from Oct. 18-30. It can also be reported that the Ulster county goal is $7,500, a figure that means little except that some of it will be raised by busy mothers. A total of $5,000 of this will be raised through the Community Chest in Kingston, the balance of $2,500 to be raised in the surrounding areas by the local Girl Scout Community Associations. Each community is responsible for raising funds in its own way, and in this village the mothers elected to engage in a door-to-door solicitation for funds.

More than 40 years of experience and an inestimable amount of time and money have gone into the building and maintenance of this program. The Girl Scout organization believes that "the program develops soundly only when groups of citizens accept responsibility for the local support and direction of the Girl Scout movement."

This year's goal of $7,500 is the largest that Ulster county has ever undertaken, but this year's plans and programs also are bigger and better. This year a county director has been appointed, and an office maintained in Kingston where all Girl Scouts in the county will be welcome for consultation on programs or problems.

THE NEW DIRECTOR is Mrs. Kenneth Martin who has recently moved to her new home at Woodstock Meadows.

The annual drive during the last two weeks in October is county-wide, and five troops in this community will receive 25 per cent of the collections made here to carry on their own work. In past years the Girl Scout troops in this village have given holiday parties for the children of the village and participated in other activities such as the Library Fair as a part of their community service program. Every girl member of the organization is committed to give service by the very nature of the promise she makes. The Girl Scout pin and the various badge insignia are emblems of the ability and willingness of Girl Scouts to serve.

Serving as captains for the fund-raising drive will be the following members of the troop committees: Mrs. Kenneth Wilson, Mrs. William J. Melville, Mrs. Edward Gurland, Mrs. Haromon Fischer and Mrs. Charles Klothe.

GIRL SCOUT DRIVE—Mrs. Charles King, community chairman of the Woodstock Girl Scout Association, and Mrs. Donald Jackson, fund raising chairman, discuss plans for the drive to be held from Oct. 18 through Oct. 30.

Guild Consignors Plan Holiday Fair

Woodstock, Oct. 11—The consignors of the Woodstock Guild Shop Co-op, Inc., met Thursday night at the shop.

Discussion centered on planning for the coming Holiday Fair. Many new items for the shop received a preview and critical appraisal. Others in the planning stage received the benefit of stimulating observations, from among those present. One of the results of the discussion was a permanent idea file which will be available to the consignors.

The public will have the opportunity to see these new articles when the Holiday Fair opens at Thanksgiving.

Group Is Organized

Woodstock, Oct. 11—An older young people's group has been formed at the Christ Lutheran Church, with the purpose of raising money for a church hall. The first project under the auspices of the group will be a cookie and gift sale to be held the last week in November, time and place to be announced.

Since the group has just begun to function, no name has as yet been selected. However, they have already begun to work to make the church hall a reality.

Club Plans Party

Woodstock, Oct. 11 — The Zena Country Club will hold a card party Saturday, Oct. 16, at 8:15 p. m. Refreshments will be served.

Agapae Rebekahs Install Officers

Woodstock, Oct. 11—The regular meeting of Agapae Rebekah Lodge, 623, was held at the Bearsville Lodge Hall Wednesday night. The new officers for the coming year were installed by Mrs. Evelyn Hoberg, district deputy president of Ulster District No. 1, and staff, as follows: Miss Kathleen Hung, noble grand; Mrs. Elsie Ross, vice grand; Miss Florence Peper, recording secretary; Mrs. Barbara Gibson, financial secretary; Mrs. Marjorie Harder, treasurer; Mrs. Marguerite Mallow, warden; Mrs. Ann Lettel, conductor; Mrs. Mitzi Kelley, color bearer; Mrs. Elvina Wolven, chaplain; Miss Claudia Williams, musician; Miss Katrina Wilber, past noble grand; Mrs. Velma Grazier, inside guardian; Mrs. Daisy Montgomery, outside guardian; Mrs. Heloise Marquardt, right altar supporter; Mrs. Fannie Longo, left altar supporter; Mrs. Mae Hung, right supporter to noble grand; Miss Evelyn Stone, left supporter to noble grand; Mrs. Walenah Cashdollar, right supporter to past noble grand; Mrs. Effie Happy, left supporter to past noble grand; Mrs. Theresa Grazier, right supporter to the chaplain; Mrs. Orpha Snyder, Mrs. Anna Elwyn, right supporter to the vice grand; Mrs. Edna Rowe, left supporter to the vice grand; George Braendly, drill master.

There were guests present from Highland, Kingston, Phoenicia. Refreshments were served and a social hour followed.

School News

Woodstock, Oct. 11 — The Woodstock School will have two holidays this week, Tuesday, Oct. 12, Columbus Day, and Friday, Oct. 15, when the faculty attends a teachers conference in Albany.

A fire drill was held at the school Wednesday and the entire student body evacuated the school in 45 seconds. The second drill, held on the same day, during which the front door was supposedly blocked, emptied the school in a minute and a half by other exits.

The music program has begun at the school with 15 new members of the band, all beginners. Eight clarinets and two flutes have been added, rented from the Empire Music Company of Bearsville. The four new cornet players have rented school instruments. Veteran band members from last year include 11 musicians, making a total band of 26.

There are 44 singers in the chorus this year, and it is expected that the second, third and fourth grades will form a chorus in the near future.

Red China Calls For U.S. Change

Tokyo, Oct. 11 (AP)—Red China again says the United Nations "must shoulder its inescapable responsibility" and call upon the United States to withdraw military support of Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists on Formosa.

Foreign Minister Chou En-lai renewed this demand yesterday in a message to UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold, Peiping radio reported.

Chou also repeated Red China's charge that U. S. activities on Formosa constitute "armed invasion."

In past years the Girl Scout troops in this village have given holiday parties for the children of the village and participated in other activities such as the Library Fair as a part of their community service program. Every girl member of the organization is committed to give service by the very nature of the promise she makes. The Girl Scout pin and the various badge insignia are emblems of the ability and willingness of Girl Scouts to serve.

Serving as captains for the fund-raising drive will be the following members of the troop committees: Mrs. Kenneth Wilson, Mrs. William J. Melville, Mrs. Edward Gurland, Mrs. Haromon Fischer and Mrs. Charles Klothe.

GIRL SCOUT DRIVE—Mrs. Charles King, community chairman of the Woodstock Girl Scout Association, and Mrs. Donald Jackson, fund raising chairman, discuss plans for the drive to be held from Oct. 18 through Oct. 30.

Guild Consignors Plan Holiday Fair

Woodstock, Oct. 11—The consignors of the Woodstock Guild Shop Co-op, Inc., met Thursday night at the shop.

Discussion centered on planning for the coming Holiday Fair. Many new items for the shop received a preview and critical appraisal. Others in the planning stage received the benefit of stimulating observations, from among those present. One of the results of the discussion was a permanent idea file which will be available to the consignors.

The public will have the opportunity to see these new articles when the Holiday Fair opens at Thanksgiving.

School News

Woodstock, Oct. 11 — The Woodstock School will have two holidays this week, Tuesday, Oct. 12, Columbus Day, and Friday, Oct. 15, when the faculty attends a teachers conference in Albany.

A fire drill was held at the school Wednesday and the entire student body evacuated the school in 45 seconds. The second drill, held on the same day, during which the front door was supposedly blocked, emptied the school in a minute and a half by other exits.

The music program has begun at the school with 15 new members of the band, all beginners. Eight clarinets and two flutes have been added, rented from the Empire Music Company of Bearsville. The four new cornet players have rented school instruments. Veteran band members from last year include 11 musicians, making a total band of 26.

There are 44 singers in the chorus this year, and it is expected that the second, third and fourth grades will form a chorus in the near future.

Chou also repeated Red China's charge that U. S. activities on Formosa constitute "armed invasion."

Double Raise Must Show Good Support

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

North probably wouldn't have felt quite strong enough for a double raise if his partner had dealt and bid one spade in today's hand. The double raise should usually show very good trump support.

In practice this must occasionally be shaded in one respect or the other, but the sort of hand that includes only moderately good trump support and that is not even close to an opening bid is not really good enough for a double raise.

In this case, as it happened, North had passed originally. He could well afford to shade the requirements for a double raise, knowing that he had already indicated a hand that was not worth an opening bid.

Incidentally, South would have made a slam try, by bidding four hearts, but for the fact that North was a "passed hand."

West opened the deuce of diamonds, and South had to try the finesse to the queen. This lost to the king, and back came a diamond to force out dummy's ace.

Still not worried about the hand, South took the ace of trumps and then continued with the king. When it became apparent that he had to lose a trump trick, South began to wonder what he would do if the ace of clubs were also badly placed. What could he do to prevent the loss of two clubs in addition to the diamond already lost and the inevitable trump loser?

Whatever befell, South had to take care of his losing hearts, so he cashed the ace and king with the intention of ruffing out the other two. Much to his surprise, the queen and ten fell from the West hand as South led out the ace and king of hearts. This established the nine and seven of hearts so that there was no longer a need to ruff them.

South noticed this fact silently and with no appearance of surprise. Casually, and nonchalantly, South led the seven of hearts next. West didn't suspect monkey business, as he might have if South had led the nine of hearts, and he carelessly discarded a club. This was just what South had hoped for, and he discarded a club from the dummy likewise.

Now South could lead the nine of hearts and discard a second club from the dummy. West ruffed, but dummy was now reduced to one club, and the defenders could therefore take only one club trick. If West had ruffed the seven of hearts and led a club at once, the contract would have been defeated.

Market Hits 25-Year High As Mild Reaction Fades

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—The stock market went to a new 25-year high last week, ending a mild reaction that lasted only a few days.

There was little or nothing of a dynamic nature in market movements at any time during the week.

About the best that could be said about the market is that it proved it had enough latent buying power to stem a setback.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up $1.10 on the week. It was down 80 cents last week.

On Tuesday the average reached a new 25-year high, another in a long series of 25-year highs, and stood at $137.40. It closed the week at $137.30. The peak level was the best since Oct. 18, 1929.

A LIMITED number of major groups had a hand in the rise. The steels were enlivened by business betterment within the industry. The magazine Iron Age commented that the steel industry was entering the fourth quarter with a business pickup established firmly as a major industry trend. The magazine added that steel mills expect improvement throughout the rest of this year.

If products of steel mills are in demand, that means business in general must be healthy, or so ran the thought in Wall Street.

Aircrafts enjoyed a mild buying flurry at one time. Seeking for a reason, brokers found plans for German rearmament as good as any.

The star in that field, however, was purely a solo performer. Rohr Aircraft was added to the list of the New York Stock Exchange with no little ceremony on Monday.

IT OPENED on a block of 1,100 shares at $25 a share. Fred H. Rohr, president of the company, was present on the floor of the exchange to witness the event. As a purely ceremonious gesture, he bought 100 shares himself.

Railroads at the end of last week were in a position to cause trouble to the chartists if they sagged much more. But they advanced instead. That made everyone feel better about what the chartists call the technical position of the market.

ATOMIC STOCKS came into the limelight. They are a large and ill-defined group cutting across all segments of the market. Several atomic stocks that nominally are classed as oils or golds flared up when uranium came into their corporate pictures. Several others were popular at times when recommended by brokers because of their atomic potential.

Some evidence of speculative attention to stocks was shown by fast and quite sharp gains by many issues, usually on corporate developments slow in coming to public attention.

The week, in short, was devoted to the actions of individual stocks or of small groups.

THE FIVE most active issues this week on the American Stock Exchange were:

Ford Motor of France up 5/8 at 2 13/16; Great Lakes Oil & Coal up 1/2 at 2 3/4; North Canadian Oils up 1 at 5; Burma Mines up 1/16 at 7/16, and National Petroleum up 7/16 at 2 1/8.

The five most active issues this week on the New York Stock Exchange were:

Tide Water Associated Oil up 1 7/8 at 26 7/8; Armour & Co. up 3/4 at 11 5/8; Rohr Aircraft (no net change for week) at 32, Royal Dutch Petroleum up 4 3/8 at 64 1/4, and U. S. Steel up 3 3/8 at 59 3/8.

GRIM REMINDERS—These markers near Plains, Kan., are reminders of the worst highway accident ever recorded in Kansas. Eight persons died when a passenger car and a truck collided. The markers were set up as a warning to motorists that it can—and did—happen here.

Lodge Objects To Board Report

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—The Chief U. S. Delegate to the United Nations, Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., took issue last night with a UN board's statement that the 10,000 employes of the international organization and its agencies should give their first loyalty to the UN, not to their own countries.

Asked on a television interview about the report Saturday by the UN's nine-member International Civil Service Advisory Board, Lodge said he thought the word "loyalty" had been used by mistake.

"I think what they meant was when you work full time for the United Nations, you ought to give them full time," he declared.

"Obviously the United Nations is not a world government," he continued. "It is not a sovereignty, and Americans who work for the United Nations ought to be good Americans. And I think most of them are."

LODGE SAID he would "make known" the U. S. view on the matter in the UN.

The U. S. delegation to the UN said Saturday that 2,309 American citizens are employed by the United Nations and its affiliated agencies.

The Civil Service Board, which is headed by Thanassis Aghnides of Greece, made its loyalty statement in a 16-page handbook for UN employes. It said that in case of conflict between his national and international loyalties, "the conduct of the international civil servant must clearly reflect his obligation to the international organization."

"Any appearance of disloyalty to that organization," the booklet added, "must be considered incompatible with his status."

Fond Memories

Portsmouth, N. H. (AP)—Streeter S. Smith recalled the tolling of bells following Lincoln's death and Union soldiers marching through Newburyport, Mass., as he celebrated his 101st birthday. His birthday celebration was as usual, a trip to York Beach, Me., for a feed of lobster stew and clams. Wearing his 77-year-old wedding day hat—it cost him $1.50 in 1877—the centenarian went back 97 years in memory and told of a cattle show he attended when he was 4 years old. By trade he became a carriage painter. To the usual question as to what he attributes his long life, Streeter Smith reiterated, "I just keep breathin'."

Market Hits 25-Year High As Mild Reaction Fades

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—The stock market went to a new 25-year high last week, ending a mild reaction that lasted only a few days.

There was little or nothing of a dynamic nature in market movements at any time during the week.

About the best that could be said about the market is that it proved it had enough latent buying power to stem a setback.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up $1.10 on the week. It was down 80 cents last week.

On Tuesday the average reached a new 25-year high, another in a long series of 25-year highs, and stood at $137.40. It closed the week at $137.30. The peak level was the best since Oct. 18, 1929.

A LIMITED number of major groups had a hand in the rise. The steels were enlivened by business betterment within the industry. The magazine Iron Age commented that the steel industry was entering the fourth quarter with a business pickup established firmly as a major industry trend. The magazine added that steel mills expect improvement throughout the rest of this year.

If products of steel mills are in demand, that means business in general must be healthy, or so ran the thought in Wall Street.

Aircrafts enjoyed a mild buying flurry at one time. Seeking for a reason, brokers found plans for German rearmament as good as any.

The star in that field, however, was purely a solo performer. Rohr Aircraft was added to the list of the New York Stock Exchange with no little ceremony on Monday.

IT OPENED on a block of 1,100 shares at $25 a share. Fred H. Rohr, president of the company, was present on the floor of the exchange to witness the event. As a purely ceremonious gesture, he bought 100 shares himself.

Railroads at the end of last week were in a position to cause trouble to the chartists if they sagged much more. But they advanced instead. That made everyone feel better about what the chartists call the technical position of the market.

ATOMIC STOCKS came into the limelight. They are a large and ill-defined group cutting across all segments of the market. Several atomic stocks that nominally are classed as oils or golds flared up when uranium came into their corporate pictures. Several others were popular at times when recommended by brokers because of their atomic potential.

Some evidence of speculative attention to stocks was shown by fast and quite sharp gains by many issues, usually on corporate developments slow in coming to public attention.

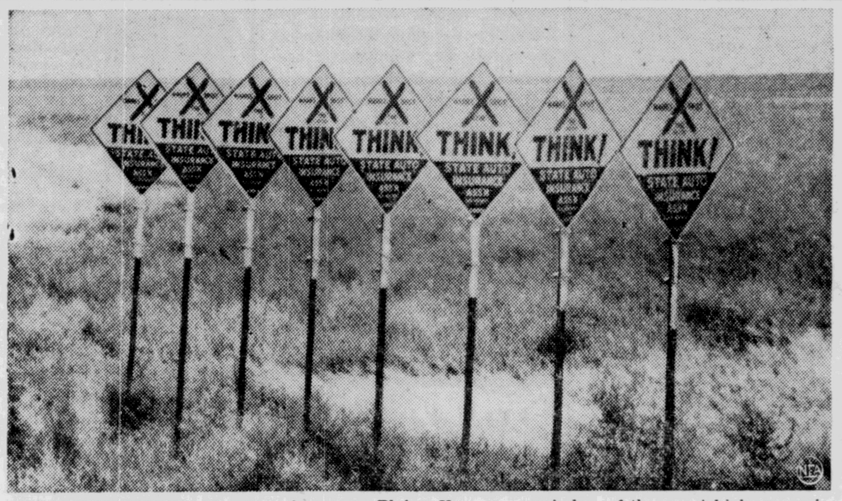

The week, in short, was devoted to the actions of individual stocks or of small groups.

THE FIVE most active issues this week on the American Stock Exchange were:

Ford Motor of France up 5/8 at 2 13/16; Great Lakes Oil & Coal up 1/2 at 2 3/4; North Canadian Oils up 1 at 5; Burma Mines up 1/16 at 7/16, and National Petroleum up 7/16 at 2 1/8.

The five most active issues this week on the New York Stock Exchange were:

Tide Water Associated Oil up 1 7/8 at 26 7/8; Armour & Co. up 3/4 at 11 5/8; Rohr Aircraft (no net change for week) at 32, Royal Dutch Petroleum up 4 5/8 at 64 1/4, and U. S. Steel up 3 3/8 at 59 3/8.

GRIM REMINDERS—These markers near Plains, Kan., are reminders of the worst highway accident ever recorded in Kansas. Eight persons died when a passenger car and a truck collided. The markers were set up as a warning to motorists that it can—and did—happen here.

The Corn's Whiskers

By FRANK TRIPP

We were having Country Gentleman for dinner and I volunteered to husk it. Well now, maybe I didn't exactly volunteer; could be that I was euchred into it. Anyway, I did husk the corn.

It had been a long time since I met up with those long brown whiskers that stick out of the end of an ear of corn; a boy's dried and ready-to-smoke "clear Havana"—cornsilk.

It wafted me back over the years and tempted me beyond resistance. Kids used to gather and hoard cigar boxes full of it in the fall; cache and treasure it for their winter smoking.

Sometimes we smoked it in clay pipes which we salvaged from neighborhood wakes, but they got pretty hot to handle, so usually it was wrapped into cigarettes in the heavy brown paper that came from the meat market.

IT WAS even graded, as are fine tobaccos, and it was conceded that the beard of Country Gentleman was the cream of the crop.

I couldn't resist the urge. I snitched a handful and rolled me a cornsilk cigarette. I wish I handn't.

I had treasured a pleasant memory of those boyhood smokes. Time had magnified the mannish joy, the fragrant aroma and the release from life's cares that a swad of prime cornsilk wrapped in brown meat paper had brought to a tired lad, all fagged out from mowing the lawn or cleaning the cellar I remembered it as God-given solace to the overworked.

IT MIGHT BE that this is not the one in seven years that yields the "vintage crop," or it might have been because I couldn't find any meat in the house wrapped in that good old brown kraft paper; nothing but cellophane, which wouldn't do at all. So I used toilet paper.

Whatever the reason, that one lusty puff near choked me to death. I discovered nothing exotic or comforting; rather it seemed that I was inhaling the fumes of a forest fire.

I'm completely disillusioned now and hasten to advise all who ever smoked cornsilk, brown paper, or buggy whips, to let memory stand as is; else you'll destroy another pleasant but utterly fallacious nostalgia of boyhood.

It was the damnedest tasting thing that ever passed my lips.

KIDS STILL gather cornsilk and sweet fern with which to emulate pop's pipe or cigarro, but there's one source of supply gone forever. I mentioned it—old buggy whips.

Whip handles were semi-flexible reed that grew with tiny holes extending lengthwise through them. They never blazed, only smoldered like a piece of punk.

I have no desire to chop off a cigarette length of the single buggy whip that's among my souvenirs and smoke it. One experiment was enough.

I SEEM TO remember that a kid who had reached the buggy whip stage was looked up to second only to the fire-eaters that we saw in the circus sideshow. And I remember losing my taste for ice cream while nursing a seared tongue, the times that I tried to smoke a buggy whip.

Talk about "irritating tars." Brother, kids can smoke unfiltered full grown conflagrations, smudge pots, smoke screens, ragweed—

And still sing in the boys' choir.

Shokan

Shokan, Oct. 9 — Minnie Schaeffer of Binghamton visited friends in Olive and Shandaken the early part of the week. Mrs. Schaeffer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Lane, was brought up near Mt. Tremper, her girlhood home having been not far from the Bert Winne garage. She is a cousin of Susie Winchell of the Beechford neighborhood, and has many acquaintances in the upper Esopus Valley and other sections of the county.

Francis Waters of the Oliver "Seven Gables" farmhouse near Old Hurley was a caller here Wednesday. Frank as a young man used to get out railway ties and other timber in the Shokan area, back in post-waterworks years.

The Olive Legion Post has made donations and given other assistance to the library at West Shokan and to the new religious training school which is now functioning in the old Boiceville schoolhouse. The veterans' organization also is lending encouragement to the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Brownies and the town public health committee.

Recent callers in the village center included Walter C. Irwin, Jr., who is in the office equipment business at Jefferson, and P. F. Tompkins who collects and deals in antique miniatures for children's rooms and playhouses at LaGrangeville, Dutchess county.

The reported death of Wealtha Kenny of Woodstock and New York removes from life's scene still another one time resident of the old village of Shokan. The daughter of Hezekiah Delemater, a Civil War veteran, she resided as a young woman with her parents on the Mary Kate Hill, or Lemuel Boice, old stone farmhouse along the Boiceville hill road.

Callers in the hub of the reservoir country Thursday included Mrs. Theodore Sampietro, the former Mary Rose Winchell of Tongore; her sister Nancy R. Davis, and the latter's daughter, Helen Wedvik, both of Stone Ridge. They were accompanied by Bertie Van Kleeck, Highland woman who was born at Brodhead, daughter of Wilbur Van Kleeck, a school teacher. Mrs. Sampietro and Mrs. Davis, whose girlhood home was the 200-year old Winchell farmhouse in Tongore, are granddaughters of Simeon Krum who deeded land for the Krumville schoolhouse which now reportedly is to be turned over to the church congregation of that South Olive village. The Krumville house of worship burned down several year ago and services have since been held at various homes in the vicinity.

Miami, Fla., Oct. 11 (AP) — Private funeral services were scheduled today for Grady Norton, the famous weatherman who earned the gratitude of coastal residents all over the western hemisphere with his 24-hour predictions on the courses of hurricanes.

The last rites were to be conducted privately.

Three assistants are continuing the hurricane warning service.

W. R. Davis, his chief assistant, assumed charge of the office, temporarily. Other storm forecasters here are Cecil Gentry and Paul L. Moore.

This is the third promotion for Duffy, a former resident of Kingston. He was formorly division manager of the branch office at Flint, Mich.

FDR, Jr. to Tour Parts of County Prior to His Talk

Prior to his talk in Kingston, however, the Roosevelt caravan will tour Highland, along Route 299 to New Paltz, Rosendale and winding up at the main post office in Kingston about 12:10 for a brief rally. The Roosevelt party will then go to the hotel for the luncheon program.

Think It Through

By EDWARD F. HUTTON

President Ike's assurance that the United States will not go to war without the approval of Congress is one of the best things he has ever said.

He affirms his loyalty to the bed rock foundation of the American system—government by law and not by men.

Mr. Hutton

Modern war, even when Congress approves, is terrible enough. "But certainly in a republic the chief magistrate ought not to be clothed with a power so full of dangers." So decided the authors of our Constitution. As Madison said, they knew "that the liberties of Rome proved to be the victim of her military triumphs." And so they would not commit American liberties "to the ambition or rashness of a single mind."

Until then, war had been "the sport of kings" and the suffering of the people. For the first time in the history of a great nation, they took this awful power from the hands of the Executive, whether called king, monarch or Caesar. They put it in the hands of the representatives of those who pay and die. Where they left it, Ike says he will keep it.

Don't worry that this leaves us defenseless. While the President has "no power to initiate a war," he does have the authority to defend against sudden invasion and meet force with force until Congress acts.

The President has spoken for the dignity of law and the rights of the people.

Joint Maneuvers Will Be Held

Valencia, Spain, Oct. 11 (AP)—Joint American-Spanish naval maneuvers appeared in the offing today following an official visit by Generalissimo Francisco Franco to the U. S. Mediterranean fleet.

The chief of state and several other top Spanish officials spent yesterday aboard the aircrift carrier Coral Sea observing fleet battle exercises and firing practice.

Vice Adm. Thomas S. Combs, fleet commander, told a news conference the Americans wanted to hold joint maneuvers with Spain. High Spanish officials said their country would be pleased to take part.

Combs made it clear that, since Spain is not a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, any exercise would be a two-nation operation.

Leaving the U. S. Flagship, Franco said training and disipline displayed by the American naval men was "perfect."

Montreal, one of the great ports of the world, is 795 miles from the open waters of the Atlantic.

The Corn's Whiskers

By FRANK TRIPP

We were having Country Gentleman for dinner and I volunteered to husk it. Well now, maybe I didn't exactly volunteer; could be that I was euchred into it. Anyway, I did husk the corn.

It had been a long time since I met up with those long brown whiskers that stick out of the end of an ear of corn; a boy's dried and ready-to-smoke "clear Havana"—cornsilk.

It wafted me back over the years and tempted me beyond resistance. Kids used to gather and hoard cigar boxes full of it in the fall; cache and treasure it for their winter smoking.

Sometimes we smoked it in clay pipes which we salvaged from neighborhood wakes, but they got pretty hot to handle, so usually it was wrapped into cigarettes in the heavy brown paper that came from the meat market.

IT WAS even graded, as are fine tobaccos, and it was conceded that the beard of Country Gentleman was the cream of the crop.

I couldn't resist the urge. I snitched a handful and rolled me a cornsilk cigarette. I wish I handn't.

I had treasured a pleasant memory of those boyhood smokes. Time had magnified the mannish joy, the fragrant aroma and the release from life's cares that a swad of prime cornsilk wrapped in brown meat paper had brought to a tired lad, all fagged out from mowing the lawn or cleaning the cellar I remembered it as God-given solace to the overworked.

IT MIGHT BE that this is not the one in seven years that yields the "vintage crop," or it might have been because I couldn't find any meat in the house wrapped in that good old brown kraft paper; nothing but cellophane, which wouldn't do at all. So I used toilet paper.

Whatever the reason, that one lusty puff near choked me to death. I discovered nothing exotic or comforting; rather it seemed that I was inhaling the fumes of a forest fire.

I'm completely disillusioned now and hasten to advise all who ever smoked cornsilk, brown paper, or buggy whips, to let memory stand as is; else you'll destroy another pleasant but utterly fallacious nostalgia of boyhood.

It was the damnedest tasting thing that ever passed my lips.

KIDS STILL gather cornsilk and sweet fern with which to emulate pop's pipe or cigarro, but there's one source of supply gone forever. I mentioned it—old buggy whips.

Whip handles were semi-flexible reed that grew with tiny holes extending lengthwise through them. They never blazed, only smoldered like a piece of punk.

I have no desire to chop off a cigarette length of the single buggy whip that's among my souvenirs and smoke it. One experiment was enough.

I SEEM TO remember that a kid who had reached the buggy whip stage was looked up to second only to the fire-eaters that we saw in the circus sideshow. And I remember losing my taste for ice cream while nursing a seared tongue, the times that I tried to smoke a buggy whip.

Talk about "irritating tars." Brother, kids can smoke unfiltered full grown conflagrations, smudge pots, smoke screens, ragweed—

And still sing in the boys' choir.

Shokan

Shokan, Oct. 9 — Minnie Schaeffer of Binghamton visited friends in Olive and Shandaken the early part of the week. Mrs. Schaeffer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Lane, was brought up near Mt. Tremper, her girlhood home having been not far from the Bert Winne garage. She is a cousin of Susie Winchell of the Beechford neighborhood, and has many acquaintances in the upper Esopus Valley and other sections of the county.

Francis Waters of the Oliver "Seven Gables" farmhouse near Old Hurley was a caller here Wednesday. Frank as a young man used to get out railway ties and other timber in the Shokan area, back in post-waterworks years.

The Olive Legion Post has made donations and given other assistance to the library at West Shokan and to the new religious training school which is now functioning in the old Boiceville schoolhouse. The veterans' organization also is lending encouragement to the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Brownies and the town public health committee.

Recent callers in the village center included Walter C. Irwin, Jr., who is in the office equipment business at Jefferson, and P. F. Tompkins who collects and deals in antique miniatures for children's rooms and playhouses at LaGrangeville, Dutchess county.

The reported death of Wealtha Kenny of Woodstock and New York removes from life's scene still another one time resident of the old village of Shokan. The daughter of Hezekiah Delemater, a Civil War veteran, she resided as a young woman with her parents on the Mary Kate Hill, or Lemuel Boice, old stone farmhouse along the Boiceville hill road.

Callers in the hub of the reservoir country Thursday included Mrs. Theodore Sampietro, the former Mary Rose Winchell of Tongore; her sister Nancy R. Davis, and the latter's daughter, Helen Wedvik, both of Stone Ridge. They were accompanied by Bertie Van Kleeck, Highland woman who was born at Brodhead, daughter of Wilbur Van Kleeck, a school teacher. Mrs. Sampietro and Mrs. Davis, whose girlhood home was the 200-year old Winchell farmhouse in Tongore, are granddaughters of Simeon Krum who deeded land for the Krumville schoolhouse which now reportedly is to be turned over to the church congregation of that South Olive village. The Krumville house of worship burned down several year ago and services have since been held at various homes in the vicinity.

Funeral Rites Held for Norton

Miami, Fla., Oct. 11 (AP) — Private funeral services were scheduled today for Grady Norton, the famous weatherman who earned the gratitude of coastal residents all over the western hemisphere with his 24-hour predictions on the courses of hurricanes.

The last rites were to be conducted privately.

The 60-year-old chief of the hurricane warning system suffered a stroke Saturday morning. He died that night.

Three assistants are continuing the hurricane warning service.

W. R. Davis, his chief assistant, assumed charge of the office, temporarily. Other storm forecasters here are Cecil Gentry and Paul L. Moore.

Duffy Promoted

William J. Duffy, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Duffy, Sr., of East Kingston, has been promoted to division manager of the Syracuse office of the P. J. Lorrillard Company, it has been learned. This is the third promotion for Duffy, a former resident of Kingston. He was formerly division manager of the branch office at Flint, Mich.

FDR, Jr. to Tour Parts of County Prior to His Talk

Two delegates from the Democratic County Committee will officially welcome Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., Democratic candidate for attorney general, when he arrives on the Kingston side of the Mid-Hudson Bridge at Highland about 11:30 a. m., Wednesday, it was announced today.

Official representatives of the party welcoming the Democratic candidate will be Thomas J. Plunket, county party chairman and Mrs. Harriet Allen Kerr, state committee woman of New Paltz.

Roosevelt will later appear at a luncheon sponsored by the party's county committee at the Governor Clinton Hotel at 12:30 p. m.

Prior to his talk in Kingston, however, the Roosevelt caravan will tour Highland, along Route 299 to New Paltz, Rosendale and winding up at the main post office in Kingston about 12:10 for a brief rally. The Roosevelt party will then go to the hotel for the luncheon program.

Think It Through

By EDWARD F. HUTTON

President Ike's assurance that the United States will not go to war without the approval of Congress is one of the best things he has ever said.

He affirms his loyalty to the bed rock foundation of the American system—government by law and not by men.

Mr. Hutton

Modern war, even when Congress approves, is terrible enough. "But certainly in a republic the chief magistrate ought not to be clothed with a power so full of dangers." So decided the authors of our Constitution. As Madison said, they knew "that the liberties of Rome proved to be the victim of her military triumphs." And so they would not commit American liberties "to the ambition or rashness of a single mind."

Until then, war had been "the sport of kings" and the suffering of the people. For the first time in the history of a great nation, they took this awful power from the hands of the Executive, whether called king, monarch or Caesar. They put it in the hands of the representatives of those who pay and die. Where they left it, Ike says he will keep it.

Don't worry that this leaves us defenseless. While the President has "no power to initiate a war," he does have the authority to defend against sudden invasion and meet force with force until Congress acts.

The President has spoken for the dignity of law and the rights of the people.

Joint Maneuvers Will Be Held

Valencia, Spain, Oct. 11 (AP)—Joint American-Spanish naval maneuvers appeared in the offing today following an official visit by Generalissimo Francisco Franco to the U. S. Mediterranean fleet.

The chief of state and several other top Spanish officials spent yesterday aboard the aircrift carrier Coral Sea observing fleet battle exercises and firing practice.

Vice Adm. Thomas S. Combs, fleet commander, told a news conference the Americans wanted to hold joint maneuvers with Spain. High Spanish officials said their country would be pleased to take part.

Combs made it clear that, since Spain is not a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, any exercise would be a two-nation operation.

Leaving the U. S. Flagship, Franco said training and disipline displayed by the American naval men was "perfect."

Montreal, one of the great ports of the world, is 795 miles from the open waters of the Atlantic.

VolunteersNamed To Aid Hospital Special Gift Drive

Announcement that 40 voluntary workers have accepted assignments to solicit contributions for the Kingston Hospital Development Fund was made by Mrs. George V. D. Hutton and Alex. B. Shufeldt, co-chairmen of the Special Gifts Committee, whose objective is to raise a substantial share of the $450,000 needed to complete the current phase of the hospiatl's expansion program.

Mrs. Hutton and Shufeldt said that they were confident that the members of the Special Gifts Committee would successfully present the need for the funds necessary to complete the new wing now under construction to those individuals and families in Kingston and Ulster county who have shown a particular interest in the hospital.

THE CO-CHAIRMEN went on to explain that hospital admissions now were almost triple those of 20 years ago and that, due to newer medical methods as well as to increased use of hospitals by the public, providing enlarged hospital facilities and modern equipment were community problems which must be met if Ulster county is to have the adequate protection of life and health that everyone desires.

The following men and women comprise the members of the Special Gifts Committee:

Chester A. Baltz, Jr., James H. Betts, J. Ellis Briggs, Clarence H. Buddenhagen, W. F. Carvell, Mrs. Vincent G. Connelly, Donald A. Downs, Mrs. Floyd W. Myers Hilton, Dr. Drederic Holcomb, Joseph E. Honig, Thomas A. Horton.

Also, Mrs. George V. D. Hutton, George V. D. Hutton, Warren Huty, Kenneth E. Hyatt, Dr. Joseph J. Jacobson, Richard M. Kalish, Lloyd R. LeFever, Mrs. Howard Lewis, Frank B. Area Farm Census Begins October 18

Field work in the 1954 Census of Agriculture gets underway locally Monday, Oct. 18, when a force of enumerators will start visiting every farm in the area, according to Field Supervisor Edward J. Amann of New York.

The 1954 Census of Agriculture is the 16th in a series of nationwide farm enumerations, the first of which was conducted in 1840. The Census of Agriculture is taken at five-year intervals to provide up to date information about more than five million farms which supply food and raw materials used by the people of the United States, now numbering about 162.5 million. The current census will yield information on the number and size of farms, acreage and harvest of crops, livestock production and inventories, selected farm facilities and equipment and selected farm expenditures.

Amann emphasized that all information about individuals and their farm operations furnished to the Census Bureau is held in absolute confidence under Federal law. It is used only to provide summary figures such as totals, averages, and percentages. The information on an individual report cannot be furnished to any one other than sworn census employes and thus cannot be used for investigation, taxation or regulation.

Honk for Help

Cottage Hills, Ill. (AP)—Clarence Welch was awakened about 4:30 a. m. by the sound of a horn on his automobile parked outside his house. He went outside and found the vehicle in flames which destroyed it.

Shoebreadth Escape

Shelton, Neb. (AP)—Engineer John Hillebrendt, peering into the darkness from the cab of his engine, saw a man on the track ahead and then a body flying past. Hillebrendt stopped the train and with the help of some 100 passengers searched futilely for the body for half an hour. The mystery was cleared up the next morning when Marcelino Aguilar told of his scrape with the train. The accident had cost him a damaged shoe and a good scare. He said the train struck him, but he fled when he found himself unhurt.

Hotbed of Opposition

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP)—Poland is pictured as a hotbed of deep-seated and bitter opposition to its Communist regime in a Library of Congress study prepared for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. "The Pole remains eager for liberty, and expressions of the rejection of communism by every social grouping continue unabated," said the study made public last night. "The Communist regime in Poland, fraudulently conceived, lives only by a state of permanent war against its own people."

State Leads All In Housing, Says H. T. Stichman

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—State Housing Commissioner Herman T. Stichman says that in the past 10 years New York state has provided more low-rent housing and slum clearance than all other states combined.

In his annual report to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Stichman said yesterday that 31 municipalities took part in the public housing program, wiping out 610 acres of slums and providing 50,918 apartments for low income families.

Completed or under contract, he said, are 76 low rent projects —31 in New York city and 45 upstate.

Stichman, who has been housing commissioner for a decade, said the program has not brought its full potential improvement because of failure "to coordinate all public improvements . . . and encourage private builders to fill out the pattern." He added:

"ONLY A POSITIVE municipal program for progressive growth over future years can help stop the mass moving to the suburbs."

The state housing report came at about the same time that New York city Mayor Robert F. Wagner announced that 100 prominent citizens have been asked to form a mayor's committee for better housing to bring fresh thinking to the problem.

"We know by now that there is no one single avenue of attack on the housing front," Wagner said and added:

"It will take the combined efforts of the federal, state and city government, as well as private enterprise, to meet the challenge. To be frank about it, I am not satisfied that we—and I mean all of us—have done everything that might be done up to date, and I believe that fresh efforts plus fresh thinking are in order."

HEALTH FOR ALL

NO ATHLETE'S HEART

"Athlete's heart" is a myth, judging by results of a series of tests made recently on former champion athletes. It used to be said that athletes suffer enlarged hearts and die of heart disease before their time. The fact is that former athletes are in better condition than the average middle-aged man.

The average former athlete tested had a more efficient heart and blood circulation, better feet, stronger hands, wider shoulders, smaller hips, and less bay window than others of his age. Their general condition showed they are more ready for action and better able to tolerate stress. They are more agile and have better muscular endurance.

There were, of course, a few exceptions—men who, after winning a title, lapsed into a sedentary life, ate heavily, smoked and drank too much, and so tore down the magnificent physiques built up by athletic training. Those who kept active, however, are physically superior, and so is the average of all the champions tested.

But what of the man who has never been an athlete, who has led a sedentary life until reaching middle age? He is somewhat overweight, has rising blood pressure and sluggish circulation, doesn't sleep well—just doesn't feel very well. Can he change his ways and starf to improve his condition, or is it dangerous for him to begin to be physically active so late in life?

He can and should begin to recondition himself, with the approval and guidance of his doctor. With conscientious exercise in moderation and with a sensible diet, he can lengthen his life and make it well worth living.

This column is sponsored in the interest of better health by the Ulster County TB and Health Association, 74 John street.

O'Dwyer Returns; Will Testify

El Centro, Calif., Oct. 11 (AP) — William O'Dwyer, former mayor of New York who served a term as U. S. ambassador to Mexico, has returned to this country to testify before a congressional committee.

O'Dwyer has accepted an invitation to appear in Los Angeles before a House subcommittee investigating Communist infiltration in Latin America.

The former New Yorker arrived at Tijuana, near San Diego, by Plane from Mexico City yesterday and then came by automobile to the ranch here of his brother, Frank O'Dwyer.

O'Dwyer said he will go to Los Angeles tomorrow. The House subcommittee, headed by Rep. Patrick Hillings (R-Calif.) has scheduled hearings Thursday and Friday.

When interviewed at the Tijuana airport, O'Dwyer said he is practicing law in Mexico City and plans to live there the rest of his life. He declined comment on political matters, saying: "I've hung up my shoes." Indicating he has given up politics.

O'Dwyer said he did not know if New York authorities planned to ask him to testify before any investigations there. He added: "And I don't know if they asked me if I'd go. It depends on how much time I have."

At one time O'Dwyer's New York administration was under fire by the Kefauver Senate Crime Investigation Committee.

Area Farm Census Begins October 18

Field work in the 1954 Census of Agriculture gets underway locally Monday, Oct. 18, when a force of enumerators will start visiting every farm in the area, according to Field Supervisor Edward J. Amann of New York.

The 1954 Census of Agriculture is the 16th in a series of nationwide farm enumerations, the first of which was conducted in 1840. The Census of Agriculture is taken at five-year intervals to provide up to date information about more than five million farms which supply food and raw materials used by the people of the United States, now numbering about 162.5 million. The current census will yield information on the number and size of farms, acreage and harvest of crops, livestock production and inventories, selected farm facilities and equipment and selected farm expenditures.

Amann emphasized that all information about individuals and their farm operations furnished to the Census Bureau is held in absolute confidence under Federal law. It is used only to provide summary figures such as totals, averages, and percentages. The information on an individual report cannot be furnished to any one other than sworn census employes and thus cannot be used for investigation, taxation or regulation.

Honk for Help

Cottage Hills, Ill. (AP)—Clarence Welch was awakened about 4:30 a. m. by the sound of a horn on his automobile parked outside his house. He went outside and found the vehicle in flames which destroyed it.

Shoebreadth Escape

Shelton, Neb. (AP)—Engineer John Hillebrendt, peering into the darkness from the cab of his engine, saw a man on the track ahead and then a body flying past. Hillebrendt stopped the train and with the help of some 100 passengers searched futilely for the body for half an hour. The mystery was cleared up the next morning when Marcelino Aguilar told of his scrape with the train. The accident had cost him a damaged shoe and a good scare. He said the train struck him, but he fled when he found himself unhurt.

Hotbed of Opposition

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP)—Poland is pictured as a hotbed of deep-seated and bitter opposition to its Communist regime in a Library of Congress study prepared for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. "The Pole remains eager for liberty, and expressions of the rejection of communism by every social grouping continue unabated," said the study made public last night. "The Communist regime in Poland, fraudulently conceived, lives only by a state of permanent war against its own people."

State Leads All In Housing, Says H. T. Stichman

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—State Housing Commissioner Herman T. Stichman says that in the past 10 years New York state has provided more low-rent housing and slum clearance than all other states combined.

In his annual report to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Stichman said yesterday that 31 municipalities took part in the public housing program, wiping out 610 acres of slums and providing 50,918 apartments for low income families.

Completed or under contract, he said, are 76 low rent projects —31 in New York city and 45 upstate.

Stichman, who has been housing commissioner for a decade, said the program has not brought its full potential improvement because of failure "to coordinate all public improvements . . . and encourage private builders to fill out the pattern." He added:

"ONLY A POSITIVE municipal program for progressive growth over future years can help stop the mass moving to the suburbs."

The state housing report came at about the same time that New York city Mayor Robert F. Wagner announced that 100 prominent citizens have been asked to form a mayor's committee for better housing to bring fresh thinking to the problem.

"We know by now that there is no one single avenue of attack on the housing front," Wagner said and added:

"It will take the combined efforts of the federal, state and city government, as well as private enterprise, to meet the challenge. To be frank about it, I am not satisfied that we—and I mean all of us—have done everything that might be done up to date, and I believe that fresh efforts plus fresh thinking are in order."

HEALTH FOR ALL

"Athlete's heart" is a myth, judging by results of a series of tests made recently on former champion athletes. It used to be said that athletes suffer enlarged hearts and die of heart disease before their time. The fact is that former athletes are in better condition than the average middle-aged man.

The average former athlete tested had a more efficient heart and blood circulation, better feet, stronger hands, wider shoulders, smaller hips, and less bay window than others of his age. Their general condition showed they are more ready for action and better able to tolerate stress. They are more agile and have better muscular endurance.

There were, of course, a few exceptions—men who, after winning a title, lapsed into a sedentary life, ate heavily, smoked and drank too much, and so tore down the magnificent physiques built up by athletic training. Those who kept active, however, are physically superior, and so is the average of all the champions tested.

But what of the man who has never been an athlete, who has led a sedentary life until reaching middle age? He is somewhat overweight, has rising blood pressure and sluggish circulation, doesn't sleep well—just doesn't feel very well. Can he change his ways and start to improve his condition, or is it dangerous for him to begin to be physically active so late in life?

He can and should begin to recondition himself, with the approval and guidance of his doctor. With conscientious exercise in moderation and with a sensible diet, he can lengthen his life and make it well worth living.

O'Dwyer Returns; Will Testify

El Centro, Calif., Oct. 11 (AP) — William O'Dwyer, former mayor of New York who served a term as U. S. ambassador to Mexico, has returned to this country to testify before a congressional committee.

O'Dwyer has accepted an invitation to appear in Los Angeles before a House subcommittee investigating Communist infiltration in Latin America.

The former New Yorker arrived at Tijuana, near San Diego, by Plane from Mexico City yesterday and then came by automobile to the ranch here of his brother, Frank O'Dwyer.

O'Dwyer said he will go to Los Angeles tomorrow. The House subcommittee, headed by Rep. Patrick Hillings (R-Calif.) has scheduled hearings Thursday and Friday.

When interviewed at the Tijuana airport, O'Dwyer said he is practicing law in Mexico City and plans to live there the rest of his life. He declined comment on political matters, saying: "I've hung up my shoes." Indicating he has given up politics.

O'Dwyer said he did not know if New York authorities planned to ask him to testify before any investigations there. He added: "And I don't know if they asked me if I'd go. It depends on how much time I have."

At one time O'Dwyer's New York administration was under fire by the Kefauver Senate Crime Investigation Committee.

Joan Van Hoesen, William T. Mahoney Nuptials Are Held

Miss Joan Ann Van Hoesen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Van Hoesen of 17 Warren street, became the bride of William Timothy Mahoney of 19 Derrenbacher street, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William T. Mahoney, in a ceremony Saturday at 11 a. m., at St. Joseph's Church followed by a nuptial Mass. The Rev. Edward I. Farrelly of St. Mary's Church, officiated.

Donald Sweeney was soloist in the selections, Panis Angelicus, Mother Beloved, Ave Maria by Schubert, and O Lord I Am Not Worthy. Mrs. Frank Rafferty accompanied the soloist on the organ. The floral decorations were large white chrysanthemums. White satin bows marked the pews.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown worn by her great-great-grandmother, of white silk bengaline, fashioned by hand, in redingote style, with a basque bodice, lace edged three-quarter length sleeves and a portrait neckline. Her bouffant skirt was floor length and was posed over a hand quilted petticoat. A circular scalloped French illusion veil in chapel length was attached to a bridal cap of matching lace. She carried a colonial bouquet of white pompons and stephanotis.

Miss Mary E. McManus, cousin of the bride, was the honor attendant. She wore a gown of embroidered tulle over rose bengaline fashioned with a fitted, scooped neck bodice and bouffant waltz length skirt, and a fitted jacket of bengaline with three quarter length sleeves and a pillbox hat of rose colored feathers. She carried a colonial bouquet of varicolored pompons and stephanotis.

The bridesmaids were Miss June Amato and Miss Jean Van Hoesen, sister of the bride, both of this city. Their ensembles were identical to that worn by the honor attendant, and their shower colonial bouquets were of varicolored pompons.

John Mahoney served as best man for his brother. The ushers were Robert Dickerson, brother of the bridegroom, and Thomas Miller, of Port Ewen.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at The Barn for 225 guests.

On their return from a motor trip through the New England states and northern New York, Mr. and Mrs. Mahoney will live at 62 Hoffman street. For traveling, the bride wore an oxford grey suit with black and white accessories and a white pompon corsage.

The bride is a graduate of Academy of St. Ursula class of 1949 and Our Lady of Victory School of Nursing of Benedictine Hospital, class of 1952. She is a staff nurse at Benedictine Hospital.

The bridegroom, a graduate of Kingston High School, served in the Marine Corps during World War 2, four years of which were in Central Pacific area. He is with Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation.

REVERSING TELEPHONE CHARGES

A reader asks: "Will you please give me your opinion on this matter: A short time ago I received a message from a person I had never met but who is acquainted with my family, asking me to call him on the telephone. No explanation as to the reason for the call was given. As this involved a long-distance telephone call and I knew of no particular reason for it, I did not feel it was amiss to reverse the charges. The call concerned a matter this person was anxious to have cleared up and was of particular concern to him alone. We spoke for about fifteen minutes. I was later informed by a member of my family that I had 'insulted' this party by reversing the charges. I have always been careful not to offend anyone and if I have in this instance I will be willing to make the proper apologies, but somehow I find it difficult to believe that I violated the social graces by my action."

Since the subject of the call was evidently of greater concern to him than to you, your letting him pay when "central" asked if he would, was not incorrect in this especial instance.

Baby Present Lost?

Dear Mrs. Post: Two months ago I received a birth announcement from a friend and a week later I sent a very nice present to the baby by insured, parcel post mail. Up until this time I have not received a thank-you note and don't know whether the package was received. As I am very much concerned about it, I would like to know if it would be proper to write and ask whether or not the package was received.

Answer: It would be an entirely proper question to ask. If she received the present she will be glad to thank you, or let you know that she has not, so that the Post Office can trace the lost package or pay the insurance.

Calling on New House Owner

Dear Mrs. Post: When going to see someone who just moved into a new house, is it proper for the visitors to ask to be shown through the house, or must this suggestion come from the hostess:

Answer: Suggestions should come from the hostess.

What size should table napkins be, and how should they be folded? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail, but you will find the answer to the above question included in leaflet E-32, "Table Linen." To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to Dept. EP, in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

REVERSING TELEPHONE CHARGES

A reader asks: "Will you please give me your opinion on this matter: A short time ago I received a message from a person I had never met but who is acquainted with my family, asking me to call him on the telephone. No explanation as to the reason for the call was given. As this involved a long-distance telephone call and I knew of no particular reason for it, I did not feel it was amiss to reverse the charges. The call concerned a matter this person was anxious to have cleared up and was of particular concern to him alone. We spoke for about fifteen minutes. I was later informed by a member of my family that I had 'insulted' this party by reversing the charges. I have always been careful not to offend anyone and if I have in this instance I will be willing to make the proper apologies, but somehow I find it difficult to believe that I violated the social graces by my action."

Since the subject of the call was evidently of greater concern to him than to you, your letting him pay when "central" asked if he would, was not incorrect in this especial instance.

Baby Present Lost?

Dear Mrs. Post: Two months ago I received a birth announcement from a friend and a week later I sent a very nice present to the baby by insured, parcel post mail. Up until this time I have not received a thank-you note and don't know whether the package was received. As I am very much concerned about it, I would like to know if it would be proper to write and ask whether or not the package was received.

Answer: It would be an entirely proper question to ask. If she received the present she will be glad to thank you, or let you know that she has not, so that the Post Office can trace the lost package or pay the insurance.

Calling on New House Owner

Dear Mrs. Post: When going to see someone who just moved into a new house, is it proper for the visitors to ask to be shown through the house, or must this suggestion come from the hostess:

Answer: Suggestions should come from the hostess.

What size should table napkins be, and how should they be folded? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail, but you will find the answer to the above question included in leaflet E-32, "Table Linen." To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to Dept. EP, in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

MRS. WILLIAM MAHONEY, the former Miss Joan Ann Van Hoesen, who was married Saturday morning, attired in the gown worn by her great-great-grandmother. (Tom Reynolds Photo)

Miss Joan Ann Van Hoesen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Van Hoesen of 17 Warren street, became the bride of William Timothy Mahoney of 19 Derrenbacher street, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William T. Mahoney, in a ceremony Saturday at 11 a. m., at St. Joseph's Church followed by a nuptial Mass. The Rev. Edward I. Farrelly of St. Mary's Church, officiated.

Donald Sweeney was soloist in the selections, Panis Angelicus, Mother Beloved, Ave Maria by Schubert, and O Lord I Am Not Worthy. Mrs. Frank Rafferty accompanied the soloist on the organ. The floral decorations were large white chrysanthemums. White satin bows marked the pews.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown worn by her great-great-grandmother, of white silk bengaline, fashioned by hand, in redingote style, with a basque bodice, lace edged three-quarter length sleeves and a portrait neckline. Her bouffant skirt was floor length and was posed over a hand quilted petticoat. A circular scalloped French illusion veil in chapel length was attached to a bridal cap of matching lace. She carried a colonial bouquet of white pompons and stephanotis.

Miss Mary E. McManus, cousin of the bride, was the honor attendant. She wore a gown of embroidered tulle over rose bengaline fashioned with a fitted, scooped neck bodice and bouffant waltz length skirt, and a fitted jacket of bengaline with three quarter length sleeves and a pillbox hat of rose colored feathers. She carried a colonial bouquet of varicolored pompons and stephanotis.

The bridesmaids were Miss June Amato and Miss Jean Van Hoesen, sister of the bride, both of this city. Their ensembles were identical to that worn by the honor attendant, and their shower colonial bouquets were of varicolored pompons.

John Mahoney served as best man for his brother. The ushers were Robert Dickerson, brother of the bridegroom, and Thomas Miller, of Port Ewen.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at The Barn for 225 guests.

On their return from a motor trip through the New England states and northern New York, Mr. and Mrs. Mahoney will live at 62 Hoffman street. For traveling, the bride wore an oxford grey suit with black and white accessories and a white pompon corsage.

The bride is a graduate of Academy of St. Ursula class of 1949 and Our Lady of Victory School of Nursing of Benedictine Hospital, class of 1952. She is a staff nurse at Benedictine Hospital.

The bridegroom, a graduate of Kingston High School, served in the Marine Corps during World War 2, four years of which were in Central Pacific area. He is with Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation.

Man Shoots His Estranged Wife; Goes Off to Bar

North Bellmore, Oct. 11 (AP)—While the younger of his two sons watched in horror, a man shot his estranged wife to death Saturday and then drove off to a bar, Nassau county police reported.

When arrested a short time later in a Wantagh tavern, Frank Newman, 51, surrendered meekly, asking police, "is mama gone?"

Told his wife was dead, Newman began muttering incoherently. Police said the husky college man had been a problem drinker for a year. Because of this he had first lost his food freezing business and then subsequent jobs. They said he had not been working for 14 weeks, and six weeks ago separated from his wife.

NEWMAN WAS charged with first degree murder and placed in the prison ward of Meadowbrook Hospital, East Hempstead, because of a heart condition.

Newman's 10-year-old son, Warren, was at home watching television when his father came in. The boy told police that his father began firing an automatic rifle at his mother. She ran into the yard and was killed by a shot through the head.

Warren said he had rushed to the bedroom to get a shotgun but his father drove off before the boy could get it loaded. Neighbors then took the youngster away from the death scene.

Later the other son, Frank, 17, came home from his grocery job and told police tearfully, "my father wanted to come back but mother refused. We had no idea he would come back today. We didn't want him to."

Newman told police he is an engineering graduate from Columbia University and New York University and has specialized in quick freezing of food.

Non-Segregation School Invites Others for Look

New Rochelle, Oct. 11 (AP)—New Rochelle high school's student organization has invited representatives of five high schools having desegration difficulties to come up for a week to see non-segration at work.

The invitations were mailed over the weekend to Milford High School, Milford, Del.; Anacostia, Eastern and McKinley High Schools, Washington, D. C., and Southern High, Baltimore, Md.

New Rochelle high has an enrollment of 1,611. It keeps no record of race or religion but has an estimated 360 negro pupils.

terms of the competitive laws of supply and demand."

A complaint issued by the FTC is answerable before the commission itself. In the normal course, a hearing is held and the commission then makes a decision as to whether the charges have been substantiated.

If it decides the charges are true, the commission can order a defendant to cease the alleged illegal practices.

THE COMPLAINT in this case charges that there "was agreement, understanding and planned common course of action" among the exchange, its members and the clearing association "to restrict and restrain" contracts for the trading in coffee for future delivery, and also the actual buying and selling of coffee itself.

It further charges that an agreement permits "futures trading only in Brazilian coffee of certain specified grades shipped from a limited number of Brazilian ports to the port of New York."

Although other trading outlets "may have been ostensibly available on the exchange, they have been so prepared, constructed and construed as to limit actual dealing" to the type of trading contract objected to by FTC, the complaint says.

THE FTC SAID the complaint contends the workings of the coffee exchange "in effect" limit futures trading — buying and selling of coffee for future delivery—to only about 10 per cent of the total amount of coffee actually imported into the United States.

This, and other actions of the traders alleged by FTC, the complaint said, "have a dangerous tendency unduly to hinder competition in the purchase and sale of coffee in interstate and foreign commerce."

The exchange officers named, all of New York, were:

One Person Hurt During Weekend Crashes in City

One person was injured in one of three city traffic mishaps over the weekend.

Two drivers involved, police said, indicated they had fallen asleep at the wheel, and one driver was arrested for operating a vehicle after his license had expired.

A police report at 9:20 a. m., Sunday said that the sedan of Lawrence Saviano, 42, of 210 Foxhall avenue, struck a pole at Main street and Clinton avenue. Officers Raymond Wells and Gilbert Gray, who investigated, said Saviano told them "he had fallen asleep and the car veered left."

THE POLE, which it struck, fell over the vehicle and damaged it. It also damaged a no-parking sign and another in front of the Warner Hotel at 260 Clinton avenue.

Saviano forfeited $10 bail through failure to appear today before City Judge Raymond J. Mino on the charge that he was driving after his license had expired.

Officers Ernest Bartroff and Floyd Krom reported at 5:31 p. m., Saturday that the car of Jannette R. Wells, 34, of Verbank, headed south on Fair street at Pearl, was struck in the rear by a car owned by Anna May Loughran, of 309 Main street, and operated by John Olson, 32, of 81 Prospect street.

Jannette Wells reported an injury of the right arm and police said she was to be treated by a doctor.

Officers Buchanan and Anthony Turck reported at 2:24 p. m. Sunday, that the car of Donald DeGroat, 21, of 59 Tompkins street, headed west on Tompkins street, and turning into East Union street, swerved into trees along a city property. Te damaged car was towed from the scene, the report said.

Teen-Age Drivers Appear in Court

Two teen-aged drivers were arrested over the weekend for alleged illegal operation of motor vehicles.

Anthony Contarino, 16, of Pleasant Valley, was arrested on Thomas street near Broadway at 9:40 p. m., Saturday by Officers George Dohnken and Francis Buchanan on a charge that he had no driver's license in his possession. He pleaded innocent before City Judge Raymond J. Mino today and the case was put over to Oct. 23 to allow him time to produce the license.

Lionel Kogon, 16, of 59 Green street, was arrested by Officers Dohnken and Buchanan on Broadway at 1:15 a. m., Sunday, on a charge that he was driving a motor vehicle contrary to provisions of his junior operator's license. He appeared in court with his mother, who was warned by Judge Mino not to allow him to drive after 6 p. m., on the present license, and he was fined $10. The boy's mother assured the judge that she would heed the warning.

Fire Calls Reported

Firemen responded to a false alarm and two still alarm calls over the weekend. The false alarm was sounded at 7:17 p. m. Saturday from Box 1331, Broadway and Albany avenue. A call at 2:15 p. m. Sunday for a chimney fire at the John Scharschu house, 15 Stickles avenue, turned out to be a back-up of smoke in a pipe. Another call at 8:30 p. m., Sunday was for a rubbish fire on East Union near Tompkins street.

Attorney Plans Visit to Chapin

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 11 (AP)—Atty. Maurice Baitler planned to visit 18-year-old Kenneth Chapin in Hampden county jail today to map a defense for the youth charged with killing a 14-year-old baby sitter and her 4-year-old charge.

The lawyer will be accompanied by the youth's father, Theodore, who has talked with him only briefly since his arrest.

Young Chapin attended services in the jail yesterday according to the Rev. Raymond Spears, assistant pastor of Trinity Methodist Church who is chaplain at the jail. The minister said Chapin took an active part in the services and sang hymns in a strong voice.

Dist. Atty. Stephen A. Moynahan said he is not satisfied with Chapin's explanation that he killed the two children "on impulse."

Car Reported Stolen

Local police and the sheriff's office were notified last night that the car of David E. Salmi, of Rifton, had been stolen from Ulster Park.

To pressure the deputies, Mendes-France has made the assembly vote one of confidence in the entire policy of his government. That policy has put particular emphasis on drastic measures for French economic recovery, and the premier backed this up yesterday with an announcement that production in the four months of his premiership exceeds his most optimistic hopes.

Although other trading outlets "may have been ostensibly available on the exchange, they have been so prepared, constructed and construed as to limit actual dealing" to the type of trading contract objected to by FTC, the complaint says.

THE FTC SAID the complaint contends the workings of the coffee exchange "in effect" limit futures trading — buying and selling of coffee for future delivery—to only about 10 per cent of the total amount of coffee actually imported into the United States.

This, and other actions of the traders alleged by FTC, the complaint said, "have a dangerous tendency unduly to hinder competition in the purchase and sale of coffee in interstate and foreign commerce."

The exchange officers named, all of New York, were:

One Person Hurt During Weekend Crashes in City

One person was injured in one of three city traffic mishaps over the weekend.

Two drivers involved, police said, indicated they had fallen asleep at the wheel, and one driver was arrested for operating a vehicle after his license had expired.

A police report at 9:20 a. m., Sunday said that the sedan of Lawrence Saviano, 42, of 210 Foxhall avenue, struck a pole at Main street and Clinton avenue. Officers Raymond Wells and Gilbert Gray, who investigated, said Saviano told them "he had fallen asleep and the car veered left."

THE POLE, which it struck, fell over the vehicle and damaged it. It also damaged a no-parking sign and another in front of the Warner Hotel at 260 Clinton avenue.

Saviano forfeited $10 bail through failure to appear today before City Judge Raymond J. Mino on the charge that he was driving after his license had expired.

Officers Ernest Bartroff and Floyd Krom reported at 5:31 p. m., Saturday that the car of Jannette R. Wells, 34, of Verbank, headed south on Fair street at Pearl, was struck in the rear by a car owned by Anna May Loughran, of 309 Main street, and operated by John Olson, 32, of 81 Prospect street.

Jannette Wells reported an injury of the right arm and police said she was to be treated by a doctor.

Officers Buchanan and Anthony Turck reported at 2:24 p. m. Sunday, that the car of Donald DeGroat, 21, of 59 Tompkins street, headed west on Tompkins street, and turning into East Union street, swerved into trees along a city property. Te damaged car was towed from the scene, the report said.

Teen-Age Drivers Appear in Court

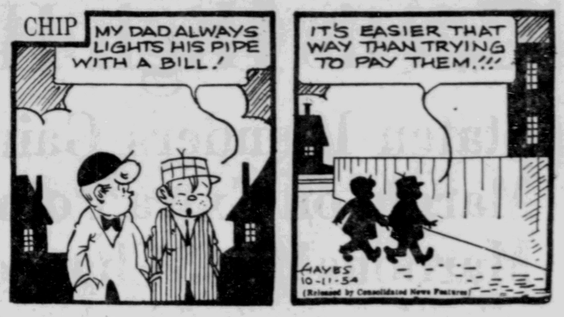

Two teen-aged drivers were arrested over the weekend for alleged illegal operation of motor vehicles.

Anthony Contarino, 16, of Pleasant Valley, was arrested on Thomas street near Broadway at 9:40 p. m., Saturday by Officers George Dohnken and Francis Buchanan on a charge that he had no driver's license in his possession. He pleaded innocent before City Judge Raymond J. Mino today and the case was put over to Oct. 23 to allow him time to produce the license.

Lionel Kogon, 16, of 59 Green street, was arrested by Officers Dohnken and Buchanan on Broadway at 1:15 a. m., Sunday, on a charge that he was driving a motor vehicle contrary to provisions of his junior operator's license. He appeared in court with his mother, who was warned by Judge Mino not to allow him to drive after 6 p. m., on the present license, and he was fined $10. The boy's mother assured the judge that she would heed the warning.

Fire Calls Reported

Firemen responded to a false alarm and two still alarm calls over the weekend. The false alarm was sounded at 7:17 p. m. Saturday from Box 1331, Broadway and Albany avenue. A call at 2:15 p. m. Sunday for a chimney fire at the John Scharschu house, 15 Stickles avenue, turned out to be a back-up of smoke in a pipe. Another call at 8:30 p. m., Sunday was for a rubbish fire on East Union near Tompkins street.

Attorney Plans Visit to Chapin

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 11 (AP)—Atty. Maurice Baitler planned to visit 18-year-old Kenneth Chapin in Hampden county jail today to map a defense for the youth charged with killing a 14-year-old baby sitter and her 4-year-old charge.

The lawyer will be accompanied by the youth's father, Theodore, who has talked with him only briefly since his arrest.

Young Chapin attended services in the jail yesterday according to the Rev. Raymond Spears, assistant pastor of Trinity Methodist Church who is chaplain at the jail. The minister said Chapin took an active part in the services and sang hymns in a strong voice.

Dist. Atty. Stephen A. Moynahan said he is not satisfied with Chapin's explanation that he killed the two children "on impulse."

To pressure the deputies, Mendes-France has made the assembly vote one of confidence in the entire policy of his government. That policy has put particular emphasis on drastic measures for French economic recovery, and the premier backed this up yesterday with an announcement that production in the four months of his premiership exceeds his most optimistic hopes.

Curtis High Hands Kingston High First Football Loss, 19-18

Staten Islanders Gain Margin on Extra Point; Maroons Miss 3 Chances

That old bugaboo of tight football games—the point after touchdown—returned to haunt Kingston High and its unbeaten slate Saturday at Dietz Stadium.

Failing to convert any of three chances, the Maroons dropped a 19-18 heartbreaker to a Curtis High eleven that was rated two touchdowns stronger than the locals.

Played in brilliant autumnal weather before a sparse gathering of adult rooters, the contest was one of the most exciting played here in years—replete with long gainers on the ground and in the air.

But in the final showdown, Curtis was able to gain its margin of victory via one extra point in three tries. It was Kingston's first loss after a tie and one win.

CURTIS' STELLAR halfback—Jim Pietracatella—lived up to his press clippings and was a one-man team throughout the afternoon. He scored twice, on a 17-yard sweep and then from two yards out and completed a 52-yard pass play for the third TD.

Kingston scored three times at the end of long marches, with Charlie Johnson slamming over from the 1; Ronnie Ashdown from the 3 and Gene Massa romping 57 yards in an electrifying off tackle burst for the final TD.

Curtis dominated the action in the fourth period, twice threatening but twice repulsed by alert Kingston defenders.

The undefeated Staten Island Indians marched from their 38 to the Kingston 9, with Pietracatella doing heavy duty. A pass to Kartalis carried to the Maroon 9 where the Indians lined up for a field goal try on fourth down. Instead Pietracatella passed to Bazanos but Nippy Mannello nailed the carrier on the five.

LATER AN OFFSIDE penalty buried the Burkemen on their own 1 where Massa kicked out from the end zone. Pietracatella gathered the ball on the 35 and returned to the Kingston 15. But two fast penalties—for offside and unsportsmanlike conduct—set the Indians back to the K 40.

Pietracatella gained three on a line smash but, when he attempted to pass on the next play, Joe Aiello crashed in from right end to smear him on the K 48 to end that threat.

Kingston rooters will still groan when they recall two long passes that might have turned the tide in the third period.

Each time Ronnie Ashdown was a step ahead of the last Curtis defender. But Ashdown barely missed both of the Massa aerials.

Kingston drove 41 yards for its first TD in the opening quarter after Gene Massa recovered a Curtis fumble on the Islanders' 41. A 15-yard holding penalty, five yard offside planted the ball on the Curtis 2-yard line. Massa hit center for one and Charlie Johnson rammed over to put Kingston ahead 6-0.

CURTIS MIXED power drives by Pietracatella with passes to march 62 yards on nine plays to score the equalizer. Pietracatella went over from the 17 and kicked a placement that was to prove the eventual winning points.

The teams traded touchdown marches on successive kickoffs. Trailing 7-6, Kingston moved 73 yards to move ahead 12-7. Ashdown, Johnson, Jackson, Massa and Nash had a hand in the march, with Ashdown slamming over from the 3. A pass conversion attempt, Massa to Johnson, failed.

Kingston's third TD was the result of a spectacular 57 yard romp by Massa. Charlie Johnson picked up nine-yards on two end romps to set up the play on the Kingston 43.

Massa started off the right side of his line, was trapped then did a neat cakewalk along the line of scrimmage before he neatly reversed, saw daylight and headed for the northwest corner of the gridiron. Kingston blocking was devastating on the play and Captain Fred Jackson removed Massa's last obstacle with a bone crunching block of Pietracatella around the 20. Massa's try for placement hardly got off the ground.

THE MAROONS led 18-13 but Curtis needed only two plays to move ahead to stay. Halfback Johnny Cammarano almost went the distance with the kickoff, returning to the K 48 where the last man between him and pay dirt—Gene Massa—was equal to the occasion.

Pietracatella then looped a short pass over the center of Kingston line where Cammarano gathered it in and sped 52 yards down the middle of the field for the clincher.

Patterson 3-1 Over Ferdinand; Dykes Meets Olla

Ferdinand, making his New York debut, has a 39-10-7 record with 10 kayos. Patterson is fourth ranking light heavyweight contender.

Starting at 10 p. m., EST, the scrap will be telecast (Dumont-TV) to some parts of the country.

The 10 p. m., EST, bout will be broadcast and telecast by NBC.

Oklahoma in Best Spot To Grab National Title

By ED CORRIGAN
(The Associated Press)

Unless an unexpected disaster overcomes Oklahoma, the Sooners should win the mythical national college football championship this year.

With only three weeks of the season gone, time probably has run out on Notre Dame. The one defeat the Irish suffered at the hands of Purdue probably will deprive young Terry Brennan of a tital in his first year as a head coach.

Oklahoma already is over the big stumbling block of its schedule, since none of the seven remaining teams figure to be in the class of Texas, which fell before the Sooners, 14-7, last Saturday.

OKLAHOMA stil has Kansas, Kansas State, Colorado, Iowa State, Missouri, Nebraska and Oklahoma A and M on its schedule. Some of these certainly are not pushovers and that great equalizer—the one platoon system—could work against any club.

Jim Harris took over for Gene Calame, injured quarterback, against Texas and the sophomore substitute made Coach Bud Wilkinson's eyes light up. Harris' passing was a revelation and he'll be heard from in the future.

The rest of the Notre Dame schedule is loaded with booby traps and the only hope the Irish have of coming out on top as the experts predicted in the pre-season Associated Press poll is to sail through their opposition and see the Sooners upended at least once.

Notre Dame was impressive in its 33-0 victory over Pitt. The victory showed that Brennan and his crew were capable of rebounding after a humiliation. But the Irish still have to tackle Michigan State and Navy the next two weeks.

AT THE MOMENT, UCLA and Wisconsin are Oklahoma's chief rivals for national honors. But even their position is precarious. The Uclans barely got past Washington, 21-20, and Wisconsin had considerable trouble beating Rice, 13-7.

Both UCLA and Wisconsin stay in their own leagues for the rest of the campaign. The Uclans have five more Pacific Coast Conference games left starting with Stanford, while the Badgers still have to get by a half dozen big ones.

The Big 10 title could be decided this week when Wisconsin and Purdue come to grips.

Purdue, not figured as a title threat before the season started, gained a 13-13 tie with Duke even though ace passer Len Dawson was stopped. The sharp sophomore pitched four touchdown passes each against Missouri and Notre Dame and it's on his arm that Purdue will ride if the Boilermakers are going to make the Rose Bowl.

Mays and Avila Are Top Players

St. Louis, Oct. 11 (AP) — Willie Mays of the world champion New York Giants and Bobby Avila of the American League champion Cleveland Indians, 1954, batting leaders, yesterday were named top players in their leagues by the Sporting News.

The national baseball newspaper also named Giant pitcher Johnny Antonelli and Bob Lemon of the Indians as the No. 1 hurlers in their leagues.

Mays, Antonelli and Lemon won the honors by wide margins in the newspaper's poll of managers, players, umpires and sports writers but Avila wasn't far ahead of Larry Doby, Cleveland outfielder, and Yogi Berra, New York Yankee catcher.

Ted Kluszewski, Cincinnati Redlegs slugging first baseman, ran second to Mays.

Detroit Win Hints Lions Are as Powerful as Ever

By ED WILKS
(The Associated Press)

If anybody plans to knock off the Detroit Lions for the National Football League championship this season, they've got their work cut out for them. The Lions just aren't going to be easy to budge.

A case in point is what happened to the Los Angeles Rams Sunday at Detroit. In years past the Lions just rolled over and played dead for the Rams, winning only four of 17 meetings since 1946. But no more.

You almost have to go back that far to catch the power-packed Rams being held without a touchdown (1949), but that's exactly what the Lions managed yesterday. The best the Rams, admittedly still shaken by the bruising tie with San Francisco's 49ers the previous weekend, could do was a field goal as Detroit rolled to a 21-3 triumph.

NOT ONCE did Norm Van Brocklin, the Rams' ace passer, get off one of his famed touchdown heaves. And when he tried to direct the Rams on a ground attack Detroit's defense bunched up to give up just 61 yards.

The victory—constructed on a 1-yard plunge by Tom Dublinski, a pass interception and Lew Carpenter's 60-yard scoring run—gave the Lions a 2-0 record in the western division and set them up for a Saturday night home encounter with twice-beaten Baltimore of the eastern division.

While the Lions were making like champions, the only other unbeaten team in the western division had a tough time staying that way. The 49ers found themselves seven points down in the final period at Green Bay Sunday, but with the help of Y. A. Tittle, who came off the bench with his broken hand, caught fire for a 23-17 victory.

Elsewhere Sunday the Chicago Bears defeated Baltimore 28-9, Cleveland beat the Chicago Cardinals 31-7 and New York ran wild against Washington 51-21. Philadelphia beat Pittsburgh 24-22 Saturday night.

Hughie Jennings piloted Detroit to three baseball championships.

Lewicki Trade Omen for Rangers

(By The Associated Press)

Danny Lewicki picked up by the New York Rangers in the club's most discussed player trade in many a season, already has started to pay dividends for the National Hockey League club.

The 24-year-old left winger, who was acquired from the Toronto Maple Leafs last summer, scored the winning goal last night as the Rangers defeated the Chicago Black Hawks 2-1 in the only league game. The victory boosted the Rangers, who finished fifth last year, into third place.

New York's Paul Ronty opened the scoring in the first period, and Chicago's center Johnny "Goose" McCormack evened the score midway through the second period.

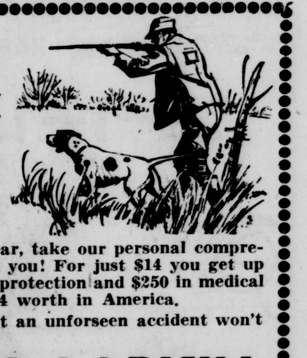

At 17:08 of the final period Lewicki took the puck from passes of Don Raleigh and Alan Stanley directly in front of the Chicago net and sent it past the helpless goalie Al Rollins.

George Wallace, a member of San Jose State College's soccer team, played the game in Shanghai.

Curtis High Hands Kingston High First Football Loss, 19-18

Staten Islanders Gain Margin on Extra Point; Maroons Miss 3 Chances

That old bugaboo of tight football games—the point after touchdown—returned to haunt Kingston High and its unbeaten slate Saturday at Dietz Stadium.

Failing to convert any of three chances, the Maroons dropped a 19-18 heartbreaker to a Curtis High eleven that was rated two touchdowns stronger than the locals.

Played in brilliant autumnal weather before a sparse gathering of adult rooters, the contest was one of the most exciting played here in years—replete with long gainers on the ground and in the air.

But in the final showdown, Curtis was able to gain its margin of victory via one extra point in three tries. It was Kingston's first loss after a tie and one win.

CURTIS' STELLAR halfback—Jim Pietracatella—lived up to his press clippings and was a one-man team throughout the afternoon. He scored twice, on a 17-yard sweep and then from two yards out and completed a 52-yard pass play for the third TD.

Kingston scored three times at the end of long marches, with Charlie Johnson slamming over from the 1; Ronnie Ashdown from the 3 and Gene Massa romping 57 yards in an electrifying off tackle burst for the final TD.

Curtis dominated the action in the fourth period, twice threatening but twice repulsed by alert Kingston defenders.

The undefeated Staten Island Indians marched from their 38 to the Kingston 9, with Pietracatella doing heavy duty. A pass to Kartalis carried to the Maroon 9 where the Indians lined up for a field goal try on fourth down. Instead Pietracatella passed to Bazanos but Nippy Mannello nailed the carrier on the five.

LATER AN OFFSIDE penalty buried the Burkemen on their own 1 where Massa kicked out from the end zone. Pietracatella gathered the ball on the 35 and returned to the Kingston 15. But two fast penalties—for offside and unsportsmanlike conduct—set the Indians back to the K 40.

Pietracatella gained three on a line smash but, when he attempted to pass on the next play, Joe Aiello crashed in from right end to smear him on the K 48 to end that threat.

Kingston rooters will still groan when they recall two long passes that might have turned the tide in the third period.

Each time Ronnie Ashdown was a step ahead of the last Curtis defender. But Ashdown barely missed both of the Massa aerials.

Kingston drove 41 yards for its first TD in the opening quarter after Gene Massa recovered a Curtis fumble on the Islanders' 41. A 15-yard holding penalty, five yard offside planted the ball on the Curtis 2-yard line. Massa hit center for one and Charlie Johnson rammed over to put Kingston ahead 6-0.

CURTIS MIXED power drives by Pietracatella with passes to march 62 yards on nine plays to score the equalizer. Pietracatella went over from the 17 and kicked a placement that was to prove the eventual winning points.

The teams traded touchdown marches on successive kickoffs. Trailing 7-6, Kingston moved 73 yards to move ahead 12-7. Ashdown, Johnson, Jackson, Massa and Nash had a hand in the march, with Ashdown slamming over from the 3. A pass conversion attempt, Massa to Johnson, failed.

Kingston's third TD was the result of a spectacular 57 yard romp by Massa. Charlie Johnson picked up nine-yards on two end romps to set up the play on the Kingston 43.

Massa started off the right side of his line, was trapped then did a neat cakewalk along the line of scrimmage before he neatly reversed, saw daylight and headed for the northwest corner of the gridiron. Kingston blocking was devastating on the play and Captain Fred Jackson removed Massa's last obstacle with a bone crunching block of Pietracatella around the 20. Massa's try for placement hardly got off the ground.

THE MAROONS led 18-13 but Curtis needed only two plays to move ahead to stay. Halfback Johnny Cammarano almost went the distance with the kickoff, returning to the K 48 where the last man between him and pay dirt—Gene Massa—was equal to the occasion.

Pietracatella then looped a short pass over the center of Kingston line where Cammarano gathered it in and sped 52 yards down the middle of the field for the clincher.

Patterson 3-1 Over Ferdinand; Dykes Meets Olla

Floyd Patterson, the Brooklyn 19-year-old who showed real punching power in his last start, is a 1-3 choice to score his third straight victory tonight (Monday) at the expense of San Francisco's Esau Ferdinand at St. Nicholas Arena.

The bout is limited to eight rounds because you have to be 20 to go 10 rounds in New York state.

Ferdinand, making his New York debut, has a 39-10-7 record with 10 kayos. Patterson is fourth ranking light heavyweight contender.

Starting at 10 p. m., EST, the scrap will be telecast (Dumont-TV) to some parts of the country.

BOBBY DYKES of Miami and Ted Olla of Milwaukee, a couple of stiff punching middleweights collide in a 10-rounder tonight (Monday) at Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway Arena. Dykes is a 5-8 favorite to record his 101st victory. Starting time is 10 p. m., (EST) for the telecast (ABC-TV).

The No. 1 fight of the light week is scheduled for Syracuse's War Memorial Auditorium Friday night when Carmen Basilio, the top-ranking welterweight contender, meets Allie Gronik of Detroit in a 10-rounder. Basilio is risking his title shot at the Kid Gavilan-Johnny Saxton winner.

Gronik, beaten only by Del Flanagan in his last 17 fights, has a 55-12-5 record. Basilio's record is 42-11-6. He, too, has dropped only one of his last 17 scraps.

The 10 p. m., EST, bout will be broadcast and telecast by NBC.

Oklahoma in Best Spot To Grab National Title

By ED CORRIGAN
(The Associated Press)

Unless an unexpected disaster overcomes Oklahoma, the Sooners should win the mythical national college football championship this year.

With only three weeks of the season gone, time probably has run out on Notre Dame. The one defeat the Irish suffered at the hands of Purdue probably will deprive young Terry Brennan of a tital in his first year as a head coach.

Oklahoma already is over the big stumbling block of its schedule, since none of the seven remaining teams figure to be in the class of Texas, which fell before the Sooners, 14-7, last Saturday.

OKLAHOMA stil has Kansas, Kansas State, Colorado, Iowa State, Missouri, Nebraska and Oklahoma A and M on its schedule. Some of these certainly are not pushovers and that great equalizer—the one platoon system—could work against any club.

Jim Harris took over for Gene Calame, injured quarterback, against Texas and the sophomore substitute made Coach Bud Wilkinson's eyes light up. Harris' passing was a revelation and he'll be heard from in the future.

The rest of the Notre Dame schedule is loaded with booby traps and the only hope the Irish have of coming out on top as the experts predicted in the pre-season Associated Press poll is to sail through their opposition and see the Sooners upended at least once.

Notre Dame was impressive in its 33-0 victory over Pitt. The victory showed that Brennan and his crew were capable of rebounding after a humiliation. But the Irish still have to tackle Michigan State and Navy the next two weeks.

AT THE MOMENT, UCLA and Wisconsin are Oklahoma's chief rivals for national honors. But even their position is precarious. The Uclans barely got past Washington, 21-20, and Wisconsin had considerable trouble beating Rice, 13-7.

Both UCLA and Wisconsin stay in their own leagues for the rest of the campaign. The Uclans have five more Pacific Coast Conference games left starting with Stanford, while the Badgers still have to get by a half dozen big ones.

The Big 10 title could be decided this week when Wisconsin and Purdue come to grips.

Purdue, not figured as a title threat before the season started, gained a 13-13 tie with Duke even though ace passer Len Dawson was stopped. The sharp sophomore pitched four touchdown passes each against Missouri and Notre Dame and it's on his arm that Purdue will ride if the Boilermakers are going to make the Rose Bowl.

Mays and Avila Are Top Players

St. Louis, Oct. 11 (AP) — Willie Mays of the world champion New York Giants and Bobby Avila of the American League champion Cleveland Indians, 1954, batting leaders, yesterday were named top players in their leagues by the Sporting News.

The national baseball newspaper also named Giant pitcher Johnny Antonelli and Bob Lemon of the Indians as the No. 1 hurlers in their leagues.

Mays, Antonelli and Lemon won the honors by wide margins in the newspaper's poll of managers, players, umpires and sports writers but Avila wasn't far ahead of Larry Doby, Cleveland outfielder, and Yogi Berra, New York Yankee catcher.

Ted Kluszewski, Cincinnati Redlegs slugging first baseman, ran second to Mays.

Detroit Win Hints Lions Are as Powerful as Ever

By ED WILKS
(The Associated Press)

If anybody plans to knock off the Detroit Lions for the National Football League championship this season, they've got their work cut out for them. The Lions just aren't going to be easy to budge.

A case in point is what happened to the Los Angeles Rams Sunday at Detroit. In years past the Lions just rolled over and played dead for the Rams, winning only four of 17 meetings since 1946. But no more.

You almost have to go back that far to catch the power-packed Rams being held without a touchdown (1949), but that's exactly what the Lions managed yesterday. The best the Rams, admittedly still shaken by the bruising tie with San Francisco's 49ers the previous weekend, could do was a field goal as Detroit rolled to a 21-3 triumph.

NOT ONCE did Norm Van Brocklin, the Rams' ace passer, get off one of his famed touchdown heaves. And when he tried to direct the Rams on a ground attack Detroit's defense bunched up to give up just 61 yards.

The victory—constructed on a 1-yard plunge by Tom Dublinski, a pass interception and Lew Carpenter's 60-yard scoring run—gave the Lions a 2-0 record in the western division and set them up for a Saturday night home encounter with twice-beaten Baltimore of the eastern division.

While the Lions were making like champions, the only other unbeaten team in the western division had a tough time staying that way. The 49ers found themselves seven points down in the final period at Green Bay Sunday, but with the help of Y. A. Tittle, who came off the bench with his broken hand, caught fire for a 23-17 victory.

Elsewhere Sunday the Chicago Bears defeated Baltimore 28-9, Cleveland beat the Chicago Cardinals 31-7 and New York ran wild against Washington 51-21. Philadelphia beat Pittsburgh 24-22 Saturday night.

Hughie Jennings piloted Detroit to three baseball championships.

Russians Take World Crown in Weight Lifting

Vienna, Oct. 11 (AP)—Russia still holds the world weight-lifting team title but only because of the Reds' superiority in events in which the United States did not enter.

The Soviet musclemen edged the American weightlifters 29-23 in the competition which ended yesterday, but in face-to-face rivalry it was the United States by a big margin.

The two countries completely dominated the championships. Russia won four individual titles and the United States three, in addition to two seconds and two thirds.

Seven world records were broken, four of them by Americans. Two more were equalled, one by an American.

THE AMERICANS, entered four divisions and were beaten only by Arkadin Vorobyev, who clinched the Russian victory by winning the middle heavyweight title. Vorobyev lifted 1,104 pounds for a new mark as Dave Sheppard of New York finished second with 979 pounds and Clyde Emrich of Chicago third with 941.

Norbert Shemansky of Detroit established two records in taking the heavyweight title with 1074 pounds compared to 1017½ by Jim Bradford of Washington, D. C., for second place.

Tommy Kono of Sacramento, Calif., also hung up two new marks in taking the light heavyweight division with a total of 959 pounds. The other U. S. individual champion was Pete George of Akron, Ohio, winner of the middleweight crown Saturday.

The monthly meeting of the club will be held Tuesday at 8 p. m., with several important matters on the agenda.

The first pheasant shoot of the club will take place next Sunday, with shooting from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Orange County Team Completes Five TD Passes

Goshen High, one of the Class B football powers of Orange county, connected with four long pass plays to defeat the Kingston High Jayvees, 34-21, in a touchdown spree Saturday at Goshen.

Goshen's brilliant battery of Joe Johnson and Denny Brown and the solid running of Richard Bernowski accounted for successive TD efforts of 21, 24, 38 and 54 yards.

The Orange eleven also picked up a safety along the way.

Coach Bill Hurley's squad trailed 21-7 at the end of three quarters but scored twice in the final period.

KINGSTON MARCHED 80 yards strictly on running plays with the kickoff after Goshen went ahead 7-0. Larry Johnson crashed over from the 3 and a pass, Dick Richards to Robert Johnson tied the score at 7-7.

The Jayvees' second TD was the result of a 20 yard end sweep by Johnson. Bob Smith, who gained consistent yardage on the touchdown trek, plunged over for the extra point.

A 15-yard pass from Richards to Robert Johnson accounted for the third touchdown, with Larry Johnson sweeping end for the extra point.

Russians Take World Crown in Weight Lifting

Vienna, Oct. 11 (AP)—Russia still holds the world weight-lifting team title but only because of the Reds' superiority in events in which the United States did not enter.

The Soviet musclemen edged the American weightlifters 29-23 in the competition which ended yesterday, but in face-to-face rivalry it was the United States by a big margin.

The two countries completely dominated the championships. Russia won four individual titles and the United States three, in addition to two seconds and two thirds.

Seven world records were broken, four of them by Americans. Two more were equalled, one by an American.

THE AMERICANS, entered four divisions and were beaten only by Arkadin Vorobyev, who clinched the Russian victory by winning the middle heavyweight title. Vorobyev lifted 1,104 pounds for a new mark as Dave Sheppard of New York finished second with 979 pounds and Clyde Emrich of Chicago third with 941.

Norbert Shemansky of Detroit established two records in taking the heavyweight title with 1074 pounds compared to 1017½ by Jim Bradford of Washington, D. C., for second place.

Tommy Kono of Sacramento, Calif., also hung up two new marks in taking the light heavyweight division with a total of 959 pounds. The other U. S. individual champion was Pete George of Akron, Ohio, winner of the middleweight crown Saturday.

Katrine Shoot Draws County's Top Marksmen

An added feature was a stellar demonstration of archery by members of the Kingston Archery Club. The archery competition winners were Ted Rhymer and Rose Rhymer.

SEVERAL GOOD scores were posted in the skeet shooting and this event proved popular with spectators who were watching the sport for the first time.

The monthly meeting of the club will be held Tuesday at 8 p. m., with several important matters on the agenda.

The first pheasant shoot of the club will take place next Sunday, with shooting from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Vietminh Units

French last May at Dien Bien Phu, as well as Russian antiaircraft guns, jeeps, command cars and trucks.

The day, which was warm and sunny in contrast to the rainy, dark weather of the past week, opened with distribution of printed messages from Ho and Giap hailing the "liberation" of their new capital.

In midafternoon the crowds gathered at Mangin Stadium to cheer the raising of the yellow-starred, Red Vietminh flag. Thirty-six hours before this the French had sadly lowered the tricolor they had flown over the city for three quarters of a century.

Among spectators at yesterday's ceremony were U. S. Consul Joseph Corcoran, members of the three-nation international armistice commission and a score of foreign newsmen.

Foreign correspondents remaining in the city include the only six nonofficial Americans here, four Britons, eight Frenchmen and two New Zealanders. Two women are among them.

Twenty other foreign newsmen, fearing they would not be able to get out later, left Hanoi Saturday night for Haiphong. Corcoran told the Americans remaining that the State Department had instructed him not to give them shelter or provide them with communication facilities even as a last resort.

Of Hanoi's former French population of 6,000 only about 60 remain. Some of them are Catholic priests.

Soon after their takeover, the Vietminh posted guards outside both the American and British consulates but withdrew them from the U. S. building yesterday without explanation.

British Consul Geoffrey Baker protested the stationing of guards at his gate but subsided when a Vietminh officer asked him to sign a paper exonerating the new government from responsibility for the consulate's security.

Nostalgia Nets Profit

Charlotte, N. C. (AP)—A hardware store, established in 1899, was preparing to make its first move. Up from a musty basement corner came boxes of buggy whip sockets, wool carding combs, brass buggy shaft tips, buggy singletrees and spoke shavers. (If you don't know what these are, ask your grandfather). They posed the question: What to do? Someone suggested a sale. They sold like hotcakes! Souvenir hunters did the buying.

Teachers Told

care; 500,000 homes and six-lane highways to gird the globe, and still have had a few billions left to promote culture and to help enrich life," Dr. Lefkowitz said.

The citation presented to the veteran legislative representative read as follows:

"For a lifetime of devotion to the welfare of his profession and his country; for his vigorous, courageous and unselfish service to the children, the teachers, the underprivileged and the inarticulate, the Empire State Federation of Teachers does award this citation to Abraham Lefkowitz, beloved colleague, undaunted protagonist of democracy in education, pioneer teacher-unionist. In testimony of our personal esteem, for his unassailable integrity and his living faith, we proudly affix our signatures and seal this ninth day of October in the year 1954."

The presentation was made by Eliot Birnbaum, president of the federation, who remarked that "social progress is possible only because of men and women of vision, purpose and dedication. We are honoring such a person tonight."

During Saturday afternoon's session, delegates adopted a series of resolutions, urging repeal of the Condon-Wadlin law, the Feinberg law, and legislation which limits the teaching of biology "because of the opposition of a religious group.

The Feinberg law, said the resolution, "is not needed to eliminate subversives from our schools since they have been eliminated under other laws, previously enacted. The American Federation of Teachers was the first teacher organization to expel Communists and does not permit them to become members."

Resolutions called for placing teachers under the Workingmen's Compensation Act, granting full salary credit for courses taken in accredited educational institutions, limiting the school year to 190 days to begin after Labor Day and end before July 1, payment of annual salaries in 10 equal monthly payments, "adequate" sabbatical and sick leaves, and limiting class size to 30 in regular classes, 20 in underprivileged areas and 15 in shop classes.

Another resolution adopted urged an increase in state aid of $100,000,000 and enactment of higher salaries bringing the range to $4,000 to $8,000 in cities of under one million population, and from $4,500 to $8,500 in larger cities. The delegates also asked for contractual tenure and certain improvements in pensions.

Vietminh Units

French last May at Dien Bien Phu, as well as Russian antiaircraft guns, jeeps, command cars and trucks.

The day, which was warm and sunny in contrast to the rainy, dark weather of the past week, opened with distribution of printed messages from Ho and Giap hailing the "liberation" of their new capital.

In midafternoon the crowds gathered at Mangin Stadium to cheer the raising of the yellow-starred, Red Vietminh flag. Thirty-six hours before this the French had sadly lowered the tricolor they had flown over the city for three quarters of a century.

Among spectators at yesterday's ceremony were U. S. Consul Joseph Corcoran, members of the three-nation international armistice commission and a score of foreign newsmen.

Foreign correspondents remaining in the city include the only six nonofficial Americans here, four Britons, eight Frenchmen and two New Zealanders. Two women are among them.

Twenty other foreign newsmen, fearing they would not be able to get out later, left Hanoi Saturday night for Haiphong. Corcoran told the Americans remaining that the State Department had instructed him not to give them shelter or provide them with communication facilities even as a last resort.

Of Hanoi's former French population of 6,000 only about 60 remain. Some of them are Catholic priests.

Soon after their takeover, the Vietminh posted guards outside both the American and British consulates but withdrew them from the U. S. building yesterday without explanation.

British Consul Geoffrey Baker protested the stationing of guards at his gate but subsided when a Vietminh officer asked him to sign a paper exonerating the new government from responsibility for the consulate's security.

Nostalgia Nets Profit

Charlotte, N. C. (AP)—A hardware store, established in 1899, was preparing to make its first move. Up from a musty basement corner came boxes of buggy whip sockets, wool carding combs, brass buggy shaft tips, buggy singletrees and spoke shavers. (If you don't know what these are, ask your grandfather). They posed the question: What to do? Someone suggested a sale. They sold like hotcakes! Souvenir hunters did the buying.

Teachers Told

care; 500,000 homes and six-lane highways to gird the globe, and still have had a few billions left to promote culture and to help enrich life," Dr. Lefkowitz said.

The citation presented to the veteran legislative representative read as follows:

"For a lifetime of devotion to the welfare of his profession and his country; for his vigorous, courageous and unselfish service to the children, the teachers, the underprivileged and the inarticulate, the Empire State Federation of Teachers does award this citation to Abraham Lefkowitz, beloved colleague, undaunted protagonist of democracy in education, pioneer teacher-unionist. In testimony of our personal esteem, for his unassailable integrity and his living faith, we proudly affix our signatures and seal this ninth day of October in the year 1954."

The presentation was made by Eliot Birnbaum, president of the federation, who remarked that "social progress is possible only because of men and women of vision, purpose and dedication. We are honoring such a person tonight."

During Saturday afternoon's session, delegates adopted a series of resolutions, urging repeal of the Condon-Wadlin law, the Feinberg law, and legislation which limits the teaching of biology "because of the opposition of a religious group.

The Feinberg law, said the resolution, "is not needed to eliminate subversives from our schools since they have been eliminated under other laws, previously enacted. The American Federation of Teachers was the first teacher organization to expel Communists and does not permit them to become members."

Resolutions called for placing teachers under the Workingmen's Compensation Act, granting full salary credit for courses taken in accredited educational institutions, limiting the school year to 190 days to begin after Labor Day and end before July 1, payment of annual salaries in 10 equal monthly payments, "adequate" sabbatical and sick leaves, and limiting class size to 30 in regular classes, 20 in underprivileged areas and 15 in shop classes.

Another resolution adopted urged an increase in state aid of $100,000,000 and enactment of higher salaries bringing the range to $4,000 to $8,000 in cities of under one million population, and from $4,500 to $8,500 in larger cities. The delegates also asked for contractual tenure and certain improvements in pensions.

Dides Denies Any U. S. Connection

Paris, Oct. 11 (AP)—Jean Dides, the former police inspector whose suspension touched off an inquiry into espionage in the French Defense Council. denied today he ever had any connection with U. S. intelligence services.

Communist and pro-Communist newspapers have hinted recently that leaks in the council benefited American spy networks. However, one of the key figures in the case, Andre Baranes, has admitted giving defense secrets to the French Communist party.

Questioned about the American angle, Dides told reporters on leaving an official interrogation this morning. There was nothing to the stories in the Communist press.

He had been questioned more than three hours by Maj. Jean De Resseguier, who is investigating the case as a sort of one-man grand jury for a military tribunal.
